

'Cuckoo's Nest' takes top Oscars

From Herald news services

HOLLYWOOD — "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" flew away with the three highest honors awarded to a motion picture Monday night at the 48th Annual Academy Award Ceremonies.

Jack Nicholson and Louise Fletcher won Oscars for their lead roles in "Cuckoo's Nest" and the picture won the critic's favor as the best of 1975.

Milos Forman won an Oscar for best director of the film.

The three awards are the first grand slam by a single film since 1934 when Clark Gable, Claudette Colbert and "It Happened One Night" ran off with the prizes.

Lee Grant and George Burns won Oscars Monday night as best actor and actress in supporting roles.

Miss Grant won for her role in "Shampoo."

Burns won for his role in "The Sunshine Boys."

"Dersu Uzala," a Soviet production, was named best foreign language film of the year.

In other awards presented Monday, the Academy Board honored "Jaws" with the best original score and the best film editing.

Award for cinematography and for best costume design was presented to the makers of "Barry Lyndon."

The best original screenplay award went to the makers of "Dog Day Afternoon." The award for best screenplay adapted from other sources went to the night's big winner, "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest."

Keith Carradine won the award for the best original song with "I'm Easy" from the movie "Nashville."

Mary Pickford who won the second Oscar ever awarded an actress back in 1928 for "Coquette" made a filmed appearance to accept a special Oscar from the Academy Board for her contribution to the films over the years.

Nicholson, the heavy favorite to win an Oscar in his fifth try, was greeted by screaming fans who pelted him with roses when he arrived at the ceremonies at the Los Angeles Music Center.

Elizabeth Taylor, all cleavage and red flowing gown, attracted the most attention among the early arrivals who would participate in the nationally televised ceremonies.

Ann-Margret, a nominee for best actress, arrived in a white dress cut to the waist, rivaling Angie Dickinson in a see-through sequin dress which also made a great show of décolletage in

Citizens unit to mull plans for flooding

Final plans for the $1 million Salt Creek flood-control project will be reviewed tonight by the Citizens Action Committee Against Flooding.

The plans are for the grading of 52 acres of former Nike base property at New Wilke and Central roads for a park district golf course and for a storm retention area in the Surrey Ridge West subdivision.

If the plans are accepted by the committee and approved by the village board April 5, bids will be let for the project late April or May, said Trustee Frank Palmatier, chairman of the committee.

The meeting begins at 6 p.m. at the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

The committee also will review a master plan for the recreational development of the village's landfill site, as well as proposed improvements for the McDonald Creek area between Hintz Road and Windsor Drive.

The master plan study for the 57-acre landfill site at Nichols and Schaefer roads on the north edge of the village is being prepared by Stanley Consultants, Chicago. Cost of the study is $6,000.

Tag day April 9 to benefit children

The Children's Benefit League of Chicago and suburbs will have its 68th annual tag day April 9.

The league provides money for about 50 children's agencies in the Chicago area, including community centers, settlement houses, nurseries and health care facilities.

Honduras hospitals need supplies

by JOE SWICKARD

It has been 18 months since Hurricane Fifi ripped across Honduras, killing thousands and leaving thousands injured or homeless. But the passing of time has not healed the wounds.

"It's really bad," said Maria McGowan. "There are no jobs. How can I tell you? It's really bad."

Mrs. McGowan, 1014 E. Crab Tree Dr., Arlington Heights, found more suffering when she returned to her native land in February.

"There were two hospitals in the capital city (Tegucigalpa) where there was not one wheelchair. The people — young and old — have to stay in bed; they cannot get out into the sun," Mrs. McGowan said.

THE HOSPITALS, Perpetuo Socorro and S.O.S. Village, are government-run hospitals for long-term patients. In a country the size of Pennsylvania that sustained an estimated $500 million in damages from the hurricane, "They just don't have the money for the wheelchairs," Mrs. McGowan said.

She now is, with the authorization of Honduran consulate in Chicago, seeking donations of wheelchairs for the two hospitals.

"They can be new or old. Even if they are damaged or missing wheels we can take them and fix them," Mrs. McGowan said.

Other related items, such as crutches, canes and braces, are needed, she said.

"As soon as we get enough, I will be going down personally to deliver them. After I saw how things were in February, I decided I would do whatever I could to help them from here," she said.

MRS. MCGOWAN SAW the plight of the ill during one of her continuing private relief trips to the Central American republic.

When Hurricane Fifi struck, Mrs. McGowan responded by collecting tons of food and clothing for the victims. The donations, which began around the neighborhood, eventually came from the entire Chicago area.

Her efforts did not stop there. She has continued to supply direct relief to the suffering in Central America. When earthquakes and tropical storms hit other countries of the area, goods she collected went to those victims.

The need does not stop at national borders, she said, so neither should the aid.

But the most poignant need now, she said, are the invalids unable to move from their beds because of the lack of the wheel chairs.

"Even one wheelchair would help. They can take turns using it," she said.

Mrs. McGowan said the oldest resident of the facilities, however, a woman of 103, would be the recipient.

Persons wanting to donate wheelchairs or other medical items should contact Mrs. McGowan at 394-9709.

Judge OKs multi-unit Magnus plan

A Cook County Circuit Court judge ruled Monday that the Magnus Farm on Central Road between Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect should be allowed to be developed at 17 units per acre, despite objections from the two villages.

Both villages previously have requested zoning the 42-acre nursing home site on Central Road for single-family development, subject to a special use for retirement and convalescent homes.

Arlington Heights Village Atty. Jack Siegel said he will recommend to the village board Monday that the decision be appealed. Some village trustees said Monday they would favor appealing the ruling.

Village Pres. James T. Ryan was unavailable for comment.

MOUNT PROSPECT Village Pres. Robert D. Teichert said he does not foresee his village joining an appeal effort.

"This was no miscarriage of justice. It was a neutral third-party decision. You can't forever spend your time and effort fighting windmills," Teichert said.

He said he understood the ruling "based on previous zoning decisions" on the Magnus property.

Siegel said he was surprised by Judge Raymond Berg's ruling, because the property is zoned for only 8 units per acre in the new Cook County zoning ordinance.

Arlington Heights Village Trustee Madeline Schroeder said she was "taken aback" by the ruling.

"IT'S RATHER disconcerting that the court can make such a ruling without having any real understanding of the new county zoning ordinance and what's going on in adjacent villages," she said.

Judge Berg originally approved the Magnus proposal Jan. 16 when he issued a court order allowing the issuance of 728 building permits to Alexander Magnus. Berg vacated that ruling three days later at the request of Siegel.

At the time of Judge Berg's first decision there was uncertainty about how the Magnus property would be zoned in the final zoning ordinance, which was undergoing hearings at the time.

'76 wagon train to arrive May 5

The Bicentennial wagon train, retracing the route of the pioneers, is scheduled to arrive in Arlington Heights May 5.

The wagon train will encamp at Arlington Park Race Track where a musical pageant describing America's growth and westward expansion will be presented.

The Arlington Heights encampment will include trains from Alaska, Minnesota and Wisconsin, which plan to rendezvous at Grayslake May 4. From the Chicago area, the wagons will continue eastward to meet with eastern wagon trains at Valley Forge, Pa.

Telecare call may save a life

by JUDIE BLACK

The phone kept ringing, but no one answered at the elderly woman's home in Rolling Meadows. The caller dialed several more times during the next hour, and still no one answered. The woman had high blood pressure and heart trouble. Could she be ill and unable to answer the phone?

Several miles away at Northwest Community Hospital's Telecare Office Peggy Williams of Palatine dialed another number, a neighbor who could be phoned in case of emergency. The neighbor knocked on the woman's door, and still no one answered.

Worried, Mrs. Williams called a third number, the woman's son. Yes, his mother was with them. They had gone to church together, and Mrs. Williams shouldn't worry if his mother doesn't call or answer the phone on Sunday.

But every other day, including weekends and holidays, Mrs. Williams and the other volunteers at

Today

Telecare expect to hear from the woman between 9 and 11 a.m. It might be a brief conversation of pleasantries or a 30-minute chat, but the call tells Telecare their clients are alive and well.

"THE PEOPLE WHO call us want to be independent, but they still want to be in touch with someone too," Mrs. Williams, Telecare chairman, said. The service began six months ago, and now two men and 10 women call 255-2510 everyday to check in.

Many have families nearby but prefer not to bother their children daily. None are shut-ins, but most have some medical problem like diabetes, heart trouble or high blood pressure.

Landing gear fails, fliers escape harm

Two persons escaped injury Monday when their single-engine plane was forced to make an emergency landing at the Glenview Naval Air Station after its landing gear malfunctioned. The plane took off at 11 a.m. from Palwaukee Airport in Prospect Heights. Pilot Karl Birkenstock, Barrington, and Marjorie Sundmacher, a flight instructor from Deerfield, were making an annual flight check on the plane. Pal-Waukee control tower officials directed the plane to Glenview about two hours later when the pilot reported the front nose landing gear of the plane could not be lowered. Glenview, unlike Pal-Waukee, is equipped with foaming equipment which minimizes the plane's chances of catching fire on impact with the runway. The plane, a Cessna 177, received minor damage as the plane skidded 60 feet to a halt on the runway.

Danes to release orphans: pastor

Prospect Heights minister Paul Lindstrom said Monday the Danish government has reversed an earlier decision and will help find adoptive parents in the United States for 200 Vietnamese orphans. Lindstrom said he learned of the Danish government's decision through a confidential source in the Danish foreign ministry. Last week, Lindstrom said the Danish government had planned to maintain custody of the children, educate them and possibly return them to their home country. Lindstrom contended, however, that the orphans were being mistreated in Denmark. Lindstrom said the orphans had demonstrated against the Danish government, protesting their care. The orphans, ranging in age from 4 to 19, have been in Denmark since early last year when they were evacuated from Saigon.

Cops uncover sports betting ring

Police said Monday that two Northwest suburban women arrested last weekend for gambling were allegedly part of an area sports betting ring. Marilyn S. Berkowitz, 39, of 9418 N. Dee Rd., unincorporated Maine Township, and Sue Reid, 35, of 2064 Windsor Dr., were arrested Saturday in separate raids coordinated by Chicago police, Illinois Bureau of Investigation agents, and Cook County Sheriff's Police. Betting slips and odds records were seized in the raids, said Lt. Edward Berry, head of the Chicago police gambling unit. Berry said Ms. Berkowitz unsuccessfully attempted to flush betting records down the toilet when police arrested her at an apartment at 8901 Robin Ln., unincorporated Maine Township. Ms. Reid was arrested in her apartment building. Berry said the two women probably were working for a ringleader who is still being sought.

Des Plaines loses MSD fight

Des Plaines lost a battle with the Metropolitan Sanitary District Monday when the Illinois Supreme Court ruled the district should not be required to abide by city health ordinances when constructing a sewage treatment facility. James Murray, MSD attorney, said the ruling means regional agencies like the MSD cannot be regulated by municipalities. Des Plaines health ordinances are more stringent than those normally followed by the MSD. The city, however, still has a case pending in federal court challenging the MSD's plans regarding environmental safety in construction of the treatment plant.

Suburban votes defeat Kasper's bid

Tyrrell elected GOP chairman

by WANDALYN RICE

Cook County Comr. Harold Tyrrell was elected county Republican Party Chairman Monday, defeating Louis Kasper, who has held the post on an interim basis since November.

Tyrrell, 48, is Proviso Township GOP committeeman and a LaGrange Park businessman. He said as chairman he will "strive to rebuild the Republican Party in the City of Chicago. We cannot abandon Chicago."

Tyrrell was elected by the county GOP central committee, made up of committeemen from the 50 Chicago wards and 30 suburban townships, by a vote of 136,284 to 103,427. In the voting, each committeeman cast the number of votes which were cast in the March 16 Republican primary.

THE MAJORITY OF Tyrrell's support came from the suburbs, with just 10,161 of the 67,957 Chicago votes going to him. Kasper, who is head of the records division for County State's Atty. Bernard Carey, won 45,631 of the suburb's 172,968 votes. He is committeeman of Chicago's 35th Ward.

Following the vote, both Tyrrell and

Harold Tyrrell

Kasper declared there are no rifts in the party as a result of their contest. Tyrrell said, "Now that we've had our little intramural sport I hope we all leave the room united."

Tyrrell's victory came despite the fact Kasper was supported by former Gov. Richard Ogilvie and, reportedly, by gubernatorial candidate James Thompson.

Thompson, whose aides had said would remain neutral in the chairmanship battle, reportedly called at least one committeeman last week to urge a vote for Kasper, but was warned to stay away from a public commitment in the fight.

AS U.S. ATTY., Thompson was responsible for the conviction on extortion and tax fraud charges of the last county chairman, Maine Township Committeeman Floyd Fulle. Fulle, who has retained his township post even though he has resigned the county chairmanship, voted for Tyrrell.

The vote on the chairmanship was foreshadowed Monday by a parliamentary fight over whether to allow persons holding "proxies" from absent committeemen to vote. Tyrrell and Elk Grove Township Committeeman Carl Hansen both argued to allow the proxy voting, while former county Chairman Timothy Sheehan, a Kasper supporter, argued against it.

In a vote that was almost exactly the same as the final vote on the chairmanship, the central committee voted to allow proxy voting. As a result, Tyrrell picked up 18,984 proxy votes from suburban townships, almost doubling his final margin over Kasper.

Tyrrell will serve as county chairman until after the next primary in 1978.

NW hospital elects Howell president

The medical staff of Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, has elected Dr. Richard Howell staff president.

Dr. John Lynch is vice president and Dr. Alfred Clementi is secretary-treasurer.

All three are graduates of Loyola University's Stritch School of Medicine and are certified by their specialty boards. Howell is an obstetrician-gynecologist; Lynch is an internist; and Clementi is a general surgeon.

Murder suspect ruled unfit for trial

A 19-year-old Mount Prospect man has been found mentally incompetent to stand trial for the November 1975 kidnapping and murder of his ex-girlfriend.

Juan Aldape, 549 Dempster St., has been ordered held in the custody of state mental health officials, said Lt. Frank Braun of the Cook County Sheriff's Police.

Aldape appeared last Thursday in Cook County Circuit Court before Judge Frank W. Barbaro, who ruled the suspect incompetent on the recommendation of a court psychiatrist.

ALDAPE WILL be retested periodically, however, and may be brought back to stand trial if he is found competent at a later date, Braun said.

Aldape is charged with murder, aggravated kidnapping and burglary in the murder Nov. 29 of Pamela Kelle, 17, 1808 Algonquin Rd., Mount Prospect.

Police said Aldape forced his way into her family's apartment early in the morning and abducted the girl while her parents slept.

The girl's scantily clad body was found lying along a roadside at Belmont Avenue and Noyes Street in unincorporated Wheeling Township near Arlington Heights. She had been shot five times in the head and chest.

POLICE SAID Aldape shot the girl near a gas station, drove a block and dumped the body.

Aldape later reported the incident to the Northwest Central Dispatch Center, a police communications system serving four area departments, and identified himself as the gunman, police said.

Sheriff's deputies arrested him later in his apartment and confiscated the alleged murder weapon, a .22-caliber pistol.

Police said the two had been dating but broke up a few weeks before the shooting.

They had met while attending Forest View High School, Arlington Heights.

Aldape, however, had been out of school and was working at Universal Oil Products, Des Plaines, at the time of the shooting, police said.

Palatine woman arrested on charges of prostitution

Charged is Mary C. Hochabum, 720 N. Hicks Rd., Palatine.

She was arrested Friday at the Arlington Park Hilton, Euclid Avenue at Ill. Rte. 53, police said.

Lt. Phillip Okowski said police contacted the woman through an informant and arranged a meeting.

One policeman went up to a room with her, where they reportedly exchanged money and the arrest was announced.

The woman was freed on $1,000 bond, pending an April 9 court appearance in Arlington Heights.

Bernard & Co. has five employees. Bernard has 20 years industrial advertising experience, including service as vice president and director of the Symonds, Dramilla & Co. Inc., agency.

Bernard, his wife, LaVerne, and their seven children live at 381 Munroe Circle, Des Plaines.

Ford promises defense budget cut veto

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford said Monday he would veto any cuts in his defense budget that threaten to short-change the nation's security, saying U. S. military might is "unsurpassed" and he intends to keep it that way.

The President's pledge, in a speech at a Pentagon awards ceremony, obviously was aimed both at persuading Congress to leave his requested $112.7 billion defense authorization intact, and at replying to political campaign criticism of his policies.

"I want to serve notice today," said Ford, "that if the Congress sends me a defense budget that short-changes the future safety of the American people, I will veto that defense bill — unprecedented though it may be — and go directly to our fellow citizens, 215 million strong, on this life and death issue.

"Our adversaries know that the military strength of the United States is unsurpassed anywhere in the world," Ford said. "They know the United States is committed to a strong and powerful alliance in Europe."

"But they also know the trend of relative military strength has been changing over the past decade and more . . .

"We remain unsurpassed and we shall keep it that way."

This countered both Ford's Republican opponent,

Ronald Reagan, and Democratic candidate Henry Jackson, who have released figures which they said indicate the United States is behind Russia in the number of new warships, strategic missiles and other categories.

In his speech, Ford said: "This is a minimum budget. There is no room for major reductions." He did not spell out what he would consider a "major reduction."

Press Sec. Ron Nessen, questioned later on this score, said "the President is not prepared to give an actual figure" but feels the amount he asked "is required . . . and contains no fat."

Nessen said Ford was referring to the $112.7 billion authorization, not to the $100 billion requested for actual appropriations, because decisions made this year on authorized spending will affect U. S. defense policy several years into the future.

The President spoke at ceremonies honoring three former ambassadors to the Atlantic alliance: Belgium's André Marie De Staerck, France's François de Tricornot de Rose and the United States' David K. E. Bruce.

Defense Sec. Donald H. Rumsfeld, another former U. S. envoy to NATO, also urged in a Sunday television interview that Congress go along with Ford's request.

"There has been a mindset in the Congress that we can cut billions of dollars out of the defense establishment at no loss to our country's security, and that is false," said Rumsfeld.

Trucker strike possibility earns intense concern

by LEA TONKIN

As national contract talks continued Monday between Teamster union and trucking industry negotiators in Arlington Heights, the presence of the Administration's top mediators and statements by local business groups showed intense concern about the impact of a possible trucker strike.

Failure to hammer out an agreement by midnight Wednesday when the trucker contract expires could signal the start of a strike by some 400,000 Teamster union members. Labor Sec. William J. Usery Jr. and James Searche, national director of the federal mediation and conciliation service, talked with union and management bargainers Monday.

One source at the Arlington Park Hilton Hotel, where the talks are held, said the President will invoke an 80-day cooling off period under the Taft-Hartley law if the truck drivers and warehousemen strike. "The only question is the timing," he said.

The renewed negotiations followed a weekend vote by Teamster union rank and file to reject the Trucking Employers Inc. contract offer. Union spokesmen said the rejection and approval of a strike authorization was favored by a heavy margin. The ratio of locals favoring a strike was 10 or 11 to one, they said.

Lester Brann Jr., president of the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce, said in a Monday statement the Teamsters should take another look at the potentially devastating impact of a strike on the Illinois and U.S. economy. "The timing couldn't be worse," Brann said. "Just when we see tangible signs of an economic recovery in Illinois, this strike would critically set back an already hard-pressed economy here. A prolonged strike could force a virtual business standstill in the state, where unemployment is still above the national average."

The impact of a trucker strike on jobs and delivery of goods in the Chicago area would be significant, said John Coulter, director of research and statistics for the Chicago Assn. of Commerce and Industry. He cited the 1970 trucker strike which idled some 100,000 Chicago-area workers and caused an estimated $1.5 billion in area economic loss.

Coulter, and sources at the Hilton in Arlington Heights, said the Teamster contract package will have a broad impact on other labor settlements. The possible higher settlement for Chicago area drivers could create further problems.

The Teamsters and trucking company officials were reportedly 10 percent apart in their demands Monday. The union seeks a 30 percent pay hike for 36 months. The trucking industry had proposed a 20 percent pay increase during 39 months.

Two Teamster factions said Sunday they will call for a strike if no agreement is reached by Wednesday. "Wildcatting is in the air," one said.

The master freight agreement discussed in Arlington Heights will affect over the road truckers whose trailers carry heavy freight, steel, food and produce, auto parts and appliances.

THE LEFT-WING VICTORS walk with their weapons at the ready as the bodies of the vanquished Phalangists lie in the street Monday after the leftists gained control of the Hilton Hotel in a bloody floor-by-floor battle on Sunday. The hotel, the last major stronghold of the Christian Phalangist Party in downtown Beirut, fell to a force of several hundred leftists.

Patty faces kidnap, assault charges

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Patricia Hearst and William and Emily Harris appeared in the same courtroom Monday but their hearings were half an hour apart and the heiress never came face to face with her Symbionese Liberation Army captors.

Miss Hearst was whisked to Los Angeles and back to the San Francisco area in a secrecy-shrouded operation involving planes, helicopters and auto convoys and she spent only five minutes in court for arraignment on charges of kidnapping and assault.

The 22-year-old defendant, already convicted of federal bank robbery and facing sentence April 12, did not enter a plea to the Los Angeles charges growing out of an incident in which she sprayed a store with machinegun bullets, allegedly to help the Harris escape arrest.

At a news conference shortly after the hearing, defense lawyer Albert Johnson said Miss Hearst would plead innocent.

He said he did not feel she could receive a fair trial but that there had been no attempt to "plea bargain" with the prosecution.

"No consideration has been given, no negotiations have been held toward any plea negotiation or any guilty verdict of any kind," Johnson said.

Miss Hearst's case was continued until April 14 when her attorneys will argue for a severance of her trial from that of the Harris couple on grounds of conflict of defense. She had named them as her kidnapers during her eight-week bank robbery trial and said she was in deadly fear of them.

The Harris, on the other hand, are seeking to have all three of them go on trial together.

Presiding Criminal Division Judge Jack E. Goertzen denied a motion by Harris lawyer Leonard Weinglass that their trial be delayed a year because of the tremendous publicity surrounding the SLA and the Hearst kidnapping and trial.

Weinglass had argued that the Hearst case was the No. 1 news story in the United States and that the tremendous news coverage made a fair trial impossible at this time.

Superior Court Judge Mark Brandler read Miss Hearst her constitutional rights as she stood at the counsel table. He asked her if she had any questions.

"No," she said, shaking her auburn-haired head. It was the only word she uttered during the entire proceeding.

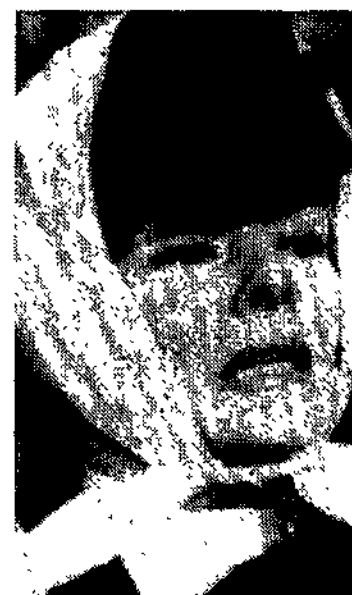

Miss Hearst and the Harris are charged in an indictment with 11 counts, including three counts of robbery, six counts of assault with a deadly weapon, one count of kidnap-ing and one count of kidnapping for the purpose of robbery.

The last charge carries a possible maximum penalty of life imprisonment. The highest sentence she can receive in San Francisco is 25 years for the bank robbery.

The sporting goods store incident occurred on May 16, 1974, a month after the Hibernia bank robbery. The Harris were stopped for allegedly shoplifting and Miss Hearst at her trial admitted she cut loose with two automatic weapons to rescue them.

Actress Sue Lyon, claiming she found marriage to a Colorado convict serving life in prison intolerable, Monday said she would file for divorce from inmate Gary "Cotton" Adamson. "I'm getting nothing out of the marriage so I'm getting out of it," said Miss Lyon. "I'm not a glutton for punishment." Miss Lyon, 29, who starred in the movie "Lolita," married Adamson two years ago while he was serving time for second-degree murder at Colorado State Penitentiary.

President Ford Monday congratulated Ellen Harness, Litchfield, Conn., on winning a contest sponsored by newspaper columnist Jack Anderson for a slogan for the U.S. Bicentennial. Her slogan, "Freedom's Way — the U.S.A.," was chosen from among more than one million submitted Anderson in the contest sponsored by the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration. Mrs. Harness and her husband Burton were President Ford's guests at a reception in their honor. She said the idea for her slogan came to her a year ago. "I began to think of the number of freedoms we enjoy. The pursuit of freedom was the driving force behind the revolution and continues as the greatness behind our country today," she said.

Tornadoes strike, leave 13 dead

Tornadoes swept through Cabot, Ark., and Canton, Miss., Monday killing 13. The Mississippi tornado, dipping down from a line of thunderstorms, struck at 2:10 p.m., killed three and injured hundreds. The Arkansas twister killed 10 and left scores of others injured, police said. That tornado struck at 3:20 p.m.

Reagan backers win TV battle

Reagan backers Monday won a round in their efforts to pressure the major television networks into allowing the former California governor to buy prime time for a major speech. NBC, saying it was making an exception to normal policy, Monday announced that it would sell Reagan 30 minutes of air time Wednesday at 10:30 p.m. The network said it normally would not offer national time while state primaries were still in progress, but that a "unique" situation existed in this case.

Nixon book shows 'lack of compassion': Kissinger

A book picturing former President Richard Nixon as distraught and drinking heavily in the last days of his administration shows "an indecent lack of compassion," Sec. of State Henry A. Kissinger said Monday. Kissinger, who himself was interviewed by Washington Post reporters Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein for "The Final Days," said in a statement the book contains "too much gossip, too many inaccuracies, distortions and misrepresentations to be dealt with."

New Yorkers face transit strike

New Yorkers facing a Thursday city transit strike that would wipe out 6 million subway and bus rides a day got just a small ray of hope Monday that this latest woe can be averted — the mayor is "hopeful." While negotiations involving 35,000 transit workers continued in a mid-Manhattan hotel, union leaders sent out instructions for a walkout that would shut down the sprawling public transit system at 5 a.m. EST, Thursday, except for trains and buses then in the middle of runs. At City Hall, Mayor Abraham Beame said he was "hopeful the negotiations can be settled" but went on drawing up an emergency plan that even included bicycles.

Race for prime minister 'neck and neck'

Foreign Sec. James Callaghan, 64, a big, bluff, Labor party middle-of-the-roader, and left wing Employment Sec. Michael Foot, 62, ran neck and neck Monday in the race to be Britain's next prime minister. Callaghan remained favorite to win, but probably only on a third ballot April 5.

Terrorists kill police official

Hooded terrorists assassinated a high-ranking police official with machinegun fire Monday in Buenos Aires, Argentina, hours before the ceremony installing Army Commander Lt. Gen. Jorge Videla as Argentina's new president.

U.S. tells Syria, Israel to keep out of Lebanon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States Monday warned Syria and Israel against intervention in Lebanon's deepening crisis.

The State Dept. said in a prepared statement, "We believe that military intervention by any outside power contains great dangers and must be avoided."

Department spokesman Robert Funnell told reporters, "Syria and Israel are two of the powers we have in mind."

State Dept. officials said the statement was not prompted by the proposal of President Anwar Sadat of Egypt for a Pan-Arab force to bring order to Lebanon. They said the United States does not consider Sadat's proposal to have a realistic chance of being translated into action.

"It appears to us that a cease-fire and an orderly and constitutional resolution of the presidential question (in Lebanon) are necessary if progress is to be made on the more fundamental issues," the State Dept. statement said.

The statement noted the situation in Lebanon "has become more acute during the past week."

Defense officials said Monday that the U. S. Sixth Fleet is prepared to evacuate Americans from Lebanon, if that becomes necessary, but such an operation does not appear to be imminent.

A U. S. Navy spokesman said the helicopter carrier Gudacanal is now in the Eastern Mediterranean with its escort ships. A Pentagon official said the ship is within 24 hours of Lebanon, but is not moving toward the Lebanese coast.

A Pentagon source said it would be more likely that commercial flights would be chartered for an evacuation of Americans before military planes are used, increasing the likelihood of incidents.

"The airport at Beirut is open," he said. "The PLO and the Lebanese army provided escorts for the Australians, who chartered commercial flights today to evacuate their citizens."

Daley man tries to oust Walker

Old wounds from the 1972 Democratic National Convention were reopened Monday at a party meeting when an ally of Chicago Mayor Richard Daley tried to have Gov. Daniel Walker excluded from attending this year's convention.

There was a sometimes angry 90-minute debate on whether to let Democratic elected officials who are not delegates have seats on the convention floor.

Wilson Frost, a Chicago ward committeeman who said he was one of the Daley delegates ousted from the 1972 convention, asked that a motion giving governors floor privileges be amended to exclude those who were defeated for renomination prior to March 29.

That would mean only Walker, a Daley enemy who was defeated by the mayor's protegee, Michael Howlett, in the March 16 primary.

Frost said Walker should be excluded because he has talked about running as a third party candidate for re-election and has hunted he might support the Republican gubernatorial nominee.

Committee member Edward Bennett Williams said, "What it really boils down to is a motion to exclude Gov. Walker," whom Frost never mentioned by name, "and I don't think the arrangements committee should be part of that kind of motion."

The Frost motion was defeated handily just before adoption of a motion allowing congressmen, governors and lieutenant governors who are not delegates sit on the floor.

Daley to lead Dems

"God must love Cook County," said County Board President George Dunne Monday when he nominated Mayor Richard J. Daley to his 13th term as chairman of the County Democratic Committee.

The mayor, who accepted the nomination following flowery speeches of praise from 15 of his admiring fellow committeemen, also thought the occasion merited a mention of God.

"Today, there's a great urge to be an independent," Daley said. "Independent of what . . . the Lord even said, and he was the wisest man, 'you're either with me or against me.'"

"It's up to every reasonable Democrat, if he's a Democrat, to support the candidate nominated by the people," the mayor said.

Name Ewert to head panel

The Illinois Legislative Investigating Commission Monday named its chief investigator, Ronald Ewert, as acting executive director replacing Charles Siragusa.

Ewert, 35, will serve until a permanent successor is chosen for Siragusa, who resigned last month because of illness after 12 years on the job.

The commission is the investigative arm of the Illinois Legislature. It makes studies and probes in areas ranging from nursing homes to car repair shops licensed by the state.

Integration plan to be cut?

The federal government will reject the Chicago Board of Education's plan for teacher integration in city schools, Chicago newspapers reported in Tuesday's editions.

The Chicago Tribune and Chicago Sun-Times both quoted federal sources saying the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare will announce the rejection at a news conference Wednesday.

Under the school board's proposal, announced last month, most of Chicago's 591 schools would have no more than 70 per cent teachers of one race by September, 1977.

Federal guidelines call for additional integration. They suggest that the number of white or black teachers vary no more than 5 per cent in any one school from the percentage of white or black teachers in the entire school system.

Joe Louis' manager dies

Julian A. Black, former manager of former world heavyweight champion Joe Louis, died Monday. He was 79.

Black died in Chicago's Northwestern Memorial Hospital, which he entered March 15 after suffering a fall in his apartment on March 11. He died of complications from the fall, a hospital spokesman said.

Fight promoter Ben Bentley called Black one of the "all time great managers" in boxing history.

"Black did more than anyone I can think of to break down the barriers for black fighters."

"The three of them (Black, co-manager Roxborough and Louis) set an example for everyone. They showed that minorities with talent could truly make it to the top," Bentley said.

Black and co-manager John Roxborough discovered Louis on an assembly line at the Ford Motor Co. in Detroit in 1932. They managed the "Brown Bomber" throughout his 13 years as world heavyweight champion.

Born in Milwaukee, Wis., Black came to Chicago as a young man. He owned a real estate company for 40 years, but sold it four years ago because of ill health.

Black is survived by his widow, Russell. The couple had no children.

Top court nixes cigaret tax refund

The Illinois Supreme Court ruled Monday smokers who paid more than they should have in tax on cigarettes since 1971 can't get their money back from retailers who overcharged them.

The court said, in effect, that it was the customers' own fault that they paid too much tax and that the small per-person amount involved would not justify the trouble and expense of refunding the overcharges.

Instead, the court ruled, the more than $600,000 in excess payments now belongs to the state even though there was no legal basis for its collection.

The court ruled in three consolidated cases involving Jewel Companies Inc., Donnick's Finer Foods Inc. and Walgreen Co. The suits were filed separately in Cook County Circuit Court by Linda Adams and Phyllis Susman.

The cases charge the firms improperly included the tobacco tax in the base price used to calculate sales taxes. In effect, the customer was asked to pay a tax on a tax, despite court rulings that was not a proper

Gov. Daniel Walker Monday declared Mason, Tazewell and Woodford counties state disaster areas following last week's tornadoes and high winds that caused about $250,000 in private property damage.

The storms damaged 40 homes and four businesses when they swept through the area March 28.

Walker said the declaration allows persons whose property was damaged to apply for reassessment of that property to take into account any loss of value. Applications are made to the local property tax assessor's office.

Fair control regained

The Illinois Supreme Court ruled Monday the legislature acted unconstitutionally when it took control of the Illinois State Fair away from the governor and gave it to a temporary board.

The decision leaves Gov. Daniel Walker and fair manager Paul King in charge of the exposition, at least until corrective legislation can be considered.

The law, sponsored by Rep. J. David Jones, R-Springfield, stemmed from repeated scandals and reports of mismanagement at the fairgrounds. A Sangamon County grand jury and the Illinois Auditor General's Office, among others, found fault with the fair's award of contracts, its fiscal management and its inventory control.

Walker, admitting the fair had been mismanaged in the past, vetoed the bill and said he felt the governor should retain authority and responsibility for the fair's operation. The legislature overrode the veto.

As it stood before the court decision, the law established a 15-member temporary board to oversee the fair.

The measure authorized each of the four legislative leaders and the governor to appoint three members to the board. Eventually, the fair was to have been handed over to an elected permanent board.

The court overturned the statute on grounds the Illinois Constitution has specifically prohibited legislative appointment of executive officers since 1948. The 1970 Illinois Constitution says, "The General Assembly shall have no power to elect or appoint officers of the executive branch."

Members of a state fair board would be officers of the executive branch and thus may not be appointed by members of the legislature, the justices said.

State starts tax crackdown

The Illinois Dept. of Revenue Monday began a crackdown on 34,000 delinquent taxpayers who owe the state $10 million in back income taxes.

Revenue Director Robert Alphin said the department is issuing warrants authorizing the seizure and sale of property owned by employers and individuals who have violated state income tax laws.

Alphin said the first group of warrants went out Monday to sheriffs, who will issue them to 65 individuals who owe a total of $26,222 in income taxes and 17 businesses which owe a total of $40,632 in income taxes withheld from employees' earnings.

Alphin said he expects the recovery program to take about six months and to collect $5.85 million in income taxes from more than 20,000 individuals.

Alphin said other means of collecting, including letters, telephone calls and personal contacts, have failed in these cases. Some of the cases date back to 1969, he said, and about half of them are in Cook County.

Suburb man, 22, kills self

John Allen Smith, 22, Tinley Park, was found shot to death Sunday night on the front steps of his grandparents' home northeast of Johnston City the day after he arrived for a visit, authorities said.

The head wound from the long-barreled .22 caliber pistol found under Smith's body apparently was self-inflicted, Williamson County Coroner James Wilson said.

Wilson said Smith's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. James Mayhew, found Smith's billfold and a note on the kitchen table when they returned home from church Sunday night and that the contents of the note led to the discovery of the body.

Smith was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Smith of Tinley Park.

School vandalism decried

School buildings will look like armed camps unless violence and vandalism can be curbed, Richard J. Martwick, superintendent of Cook County schools, said Monday.

Speaking at a school officials' conference on vandalism, Martwick said the cost of school vandalism in the nation has been put conservatively at more than a half billion dollars per year, equal to the total amount spent on textbooks in the United States in 1972.

"Unless we do something about the problem of violence and vandalism in the schools, we will have school buildings that will resemble armed camps," Martwick said.

Martwick said the figures on the cost of vandalism nationally came from a report of a U.S. Senate subcommittee investigating national delinquency.

He appealed to the school officials to seek a way to check the spread of vandalism.

He said there was an "accelerating and seemingly unstoppable disregard for people and property."

"We're no longer talking about beauty and aesthetics of buildings and grounds," he said. "We're talking devastation."

"Disenchanted students and drop-outs are frequent offenders," Martwick said, although "we may not have all the answers as to the cause of vandalism."

'Complete reversal of policy'

Danes to aid orphans: Lindstrom

by DIANE MERMIGAS
Prospect Heights minister Paul Lindstrom Monday said Denmark has agreed to cooperate in finding adoptive parents, some of whom will be Americans, for 200 Vietnamese orphans there.

Lindstrom, national chairman of the Remember the Pueblo Committee, said the "official decision was a complete reversal of an earlier decision made by the Danish government regarding the children."

Lindstrom said he learned of the decision Monday through a confidential source in the Danish foreign ministry. The committee sent a representative to Copenhagen Monday to discuss with Danish officials the future of the orphans.

The committee has been working for three weeks to retrieve the children from the Danish government's care and bring them to the United States.

LINDSTROM HELD a press conference last week to outline the plight of the children, saying they were being "mistreated under Danish care."

Lindstrom said then that the Danish government refused to place the children, who range in age from 4 to 19, for adoption. The government planned to maintain custody of the children, educate them and possibly return them to their homeland, he said.

"We received word today out of Copenhagen that the Danish government does not plan to return the children to Vietnam, and that they will be eligible for adoption by American, Danish or other families throughout the free world," he said.

"We view this as another victory, and we believe the decision was brought about because we drew attention to the situation last week and placed pressure on the U.S. State Dept. with our own contacts there. We embarrassed the Danes into this decision," Lindstrom said.

The Remember the Pueblo Committee also contends it was successful in gaining the release of crewmen of the USS Pueblo, which was captured by the North Koreans in 1968.

"IF ANY OF THE children want to come to the United States, the committee has the financial means to bring them here and find families for them. We are ready to do this, if this is what the children want," he said.

The orphans have been in the custody of the Danish government since early last year, when they were evacuated from their native Saigon. The children were originally in the care of Danish journalist Henning Becker.

The children have demonstrated against their custodians in governmental welfare centers on the island of Livo off the Danish coast where they have been held, Lindstrom said. Several children also have been injured in recent brawls with Danish police, Lindstrom said.

"Now, the children do not need asylum and can come into this country if they want to. Chances are that some of them will come here to live before too long," he said.

Airplane malfunctions; aviators OK

by DIANE MERMIGAS
A single-engine plane that took off from Pal-Waukee Airport Monday morning was forced to make an emergency landing at the Glenview Naval Air Station after its landing gear malfunctioned.

Pilot Karl L. Birkenstock, Barrington, and Marjorie Sundmacher, an FAA-certified flight instructor from Deerfield, were not injured in the emergency landing.

The plane, a Cessna 177, received only minor damage as it skidded about 60 feet to a halt on a foam-covered runway at the air base, Lt. Cmdr. Bill Ryan said.

CONTROL TOWER officials at Pal-Waukee Airport, Prospect Heights, directed the plane to Glenview when the pilot reported that the front nose landing gear of the plane could not be lowered for landing.

Pal-Waukee is not equipped with the runway foaming equipment, which minimizes a plane's chances of catching fire upon impact. Glenview does have the foaming procedure.

The plane, which is based at Pal-Waukee, took off at about 11 a.m. for an annual flight check. The pilot was flying the plane over Waukegan when he discovered the faulty landing gear, Ryan said.

"Mechanics on the ground at Pal-Waukee referred the plane to us because we have the ability to foam a runway, thereby minimizing the chances of the plane catching on fire upon landing without the proper landing gear," Ryan said.

The nose of the plane hit the runway upon landing, although the rest of the plane was held up by two other landing gear in the rear, he said.

"WE SPRAYED ABOUT 500 feet of the runway with about five inches of foam, and it worked. We had no problems and no fire," he said.

Ryan said the plane reportedly was in the air for 2½ hours before it finally landed. The plane was towed back to Pal-Waukee Airport late Monday for minor repairs.

A malfunctioning landing gear is not a common occurrence, and the last similar incident took place at Glenview more than a year ago, Ryan said.

on the name and insignia will be made by the Dist. 214 Board of Education in April.

A plaque carrying the winner's name and entry will be put on permanent display in the district's administration center.

The five finalists, all students at the district's Hersey High School, are John Savastio, Linda Merle, Bruce Granquist, Laurie Kaunzinger and Paulette Wolters.

Flu shots serious matter

A program to inoculate every man, woman and child in the United States against a possible outbreak of a deadly flu virus this fall is an ambitious undertaking.

We do not question President Gerald Ford's seriousness about the possibility of swine flu sweeping the country.

The spectre of another major outbreak of flu as occurred in 1918-19 is grim, indeed. While there is no concrete evidence that the limited outbreak of the swine flu virus on the East Coast will spread to the rest of the country, a precautionary program seems prudent.

However, we do have some reservations, directed at the administration of such a program. When a minimum of $135 million in taxpayers' money is at stake, along with the health of millions, tight controls must be exercised.

The $135 million price tag, while huge, does seem a small cost for an effective program. But we wonder whether it is realistic: does it take into account the production, transportation and safekeeping of the drug, the cost of facilities for inoculation clinics, doctors, nurses, etc?

If some of these burdens are to fall on local public health agencies, do they have the manpower and funds?

Will there be safeguards against excessive profits by the drug industry?

We urge that citizens take their own intelligent precautions. The first is to avoid fear and panic.

There is plenty of time to plan for the situation; every American should be concerned with the potential for a flu epidemic of this type and be prepared to take action when advised by responsible health authorities to do so.

Trial:

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

SAN FRANCISCO (NEA) — Don Thackrey knew it wasn't going to be an ordinary story to cover when he showed up the first day of the pretrial hearings at his usual beat in the Federal Building.

This was in San Francisco, on Golden Gate Avenue, and Patricia Campbell Hearst was arraigned for helping rob a bank.

Thackrey is the federal beat reporter for United Press International, a squat man with a thick mane of graying hair and a full beard and a trace of his native Camden, Ark., still in his speech.

Judge Oliver Carter had moved the incipient trial of Patty Hearst, which was already becoming a cause celebre to rank with the Lindbergh case, from his normal chambers to the Ceremonial Court Room, which had 28 more seats.

ON THIS FIRST morning, Thackrey was confronted by a couple hundred jostling, shoving, clamoring members of the media all trying to get into the courtroom.

Knowing the territory, he turned around, hustled down a familiar corridor, and in the back door to the judges chambers behind the courtroom.

"I could see the glares," recalls Don, "when I came out to the court room through his chambers. I wasn't going to do that every day, so I talked to the judge. Next thing, I was in charge of arranging the press seating for the whole trial."

A month later, as the ordeal of Patty Hearst was winding down to its decisive stages, Thackrey said he felt like "a den mother for a kindergarten."

AND YET, GENERALLY speaking, the press coverage of the Hearst trial proceedings was controlled and orderly and quite professional, without the raucous mob scenes, the rudeness, the strident behavior that has been portrayed in other notorious trials. Vivid is the insistent intrusion of the press in a recent television dramatization of the trial of Bruno Hauptmann for the kidnap-murder of Charles Lindbergh Jr.

It wasn't like that around the Hearst case, with one exception — when, during a recess for Washington's birthday, the defendant, the jury, the judge and assorted attorneys were taken on a tour of the two places in the San Francisco area where Patty had been held captive. Hordes of spectators, — and reporters — were allowed to swirl around the principals, and the transport between locations became a drag race, finally prompting an editorial in the San Francisco Examiner, which had carefully refrained from comment, about "the unnecessary series of mob scenes and dangers."

BUT IN THE courtroom of U.S. District Judge Oliver Carter, there was decorum. Mainly because the judge, recognizing that "this is the most fully covered case to date in this country that I know of," put the press in an allied rather than adversarial role.

"He bent over backwards to give us everything we want," notes Thackrey, who was in charge of seating arrangements. No bona fide media representatives were shut out.

Altogether, 65 seats were reserved daily for various news organizations. Another 50 were set aside for other media people who had only to show a credential identifying that person as a member of the press.

THE TOTAL OF 115 press seats exceeded the demand. Except for the first two full days that Patty Hearst was in the witness box, there was no real crush to get in. The media attendance daily averaged 90 until Patty Hearst got in the witness box.

Through sensational Hearst case, press coverage restrained, mature Patty Hearst's attitudes as a witness ranged from composure to halting, wispy sobs . . .

Court was in session at 10 a.m., and you showed up on most days at 9:30, if you didn't have a reserved seat. A security man checked your personal possessions; you went through a makeshift electronic surveillance and on into the courtroom.

In the line with me one morning were a columnist from Newsweek, a man from the Stockholm Express, a man from a French newspaper agency, another representing European weeklies, a free lance writer from Sun Valley, Idaho, and a bunch of college press kids.

The real scenes for "Front Page" updated were enacted in a makeshift press room on the seventh floor — Room 7433 — which was called fondly "The Jungle." A maze of electronic gear and wires cluttered the space. This was where F. Lee Bailey, the flamboyant defense lawyer held his well-orchestrated press conferences. (Prosecutor James Browning avoided the media except for informal chats outside the courtroom.)

The hardest working people in the courtroom were the covey of sketch artists, among them Howard Brodie of CBS and Bill Lignante of ABC, who provided their pencilled impressions of the trial setting and its leading characters in lieu of the cameras that were banned. They always had someone or something to draw.

PUT 100 OR MORE active newsmen in one area where they're scrambling for readable copy, and they'll jump at any lead. They were summoned to meet Steven Weed, the erstwhile boy friend of Miss Hearst, one morning at 8:30 in the Mark Hopkins atop Nob Hill. In the suite at that hour, he was surrounded by 30 writers and in front of him on a table were 10 microphones and 13 tape recorders, with six television cameras also recording the scene.

This was the same morning Weed was expected to be the defense's first witness, but Bailey, indignant at the press conference, cancelled Weed's court appearance. Patricia Campbell Hearst went on instead.

She was really the centerpiece at all times anyhow for the media and anyone else interested in the trial.

She was enigmatic. At times she was hauntingly attractive; at other times she looked gaunt and wan. Her attitudes as a witness ranged from firm composure to halting, wispy sobs. And in those contrasts, and the trial situations that produced them, was the material that could keep writers engrossed for weeks.

The case of Patty Hearst was absorbing and sensational enough in itself to obviate the need for frenzied scrambling for angles, for harassment of news sources. The coverage was, for the most part, mature and contemplative.

Sun power distant prospect

I would like to take this opportunity to comment on the letter from Ms. Dorothy Lundahl of the group called Pollution and Environmental Problems. Rolling Meadows. I read Ms. Lundahl's letter published in the Herald Thursday, March 18, and would like to clarify a few points raised in this letter.

Ms. Lundahl states that the " . . . now defunct Morris plant is instead being used to store spent nuclear fuel. Nuclear wastes are being trucked away from many areas to the Morris plant." Ms. Lundahl implies that the Morris plant was intended to dispose of high level radioactive waste. This is incorrect. The Morris plant was never designed to dispose of nuclear waste, it was designed to reprocess used nuclear reactor fuel in order to reclaim valuable fuel and fission byproducts from the used fuel. Nuclear waste is not trucked to the Morris plant. The United States Nuclear Regulatory Commission office in Glen Ellyn can verify this.

Used nuclear reactor fuel is trucked to the Morris plant in order to utilize the Morris fuel storage facilities. The fuel must be stored until a political decision is made to allow used fuel to be reprocessed in the United States. When this decision is made, the United States will begin to utilize this valuable energy resource.

MS. LUNDAHL asks, "Now what do we really want? More conveniences, electrical gadgets? Or do we want a sane, safe environment to pass on to our kids?" I for one wish to leave my children an environment with air fit to breathe. I also wish to leave them a nation that has not been totally stripped of all fossil fuel resources. Lastly, I wish to leave my children an economy in which they will have a reasonable chance of making a living, rather than an economy that accepts 25 per cent unemployment as a norm.

Ms. Lundahl makes several very serious factual errors in her discussion of solar power. She holds an unproven, undeveloped potential technology in higher regard than an existing working industry. The fact is we have nuclear power now. We may not have electricity from solar power for a century or more. We need power to run American factories now!

The American Nuclear Society in the interest of accurate public information has established a group called "Communicators." This is a group of scientists and engineers knowledgeable in nuclear power who are willing to donate their time to informing interested groups of the realities of nuclear power.

I am a member of the "Communicators" and would be happy to discuss nuclear power with Ms. Lundahl's group or any other interested parties in contact with several other speakers and sources of information in the Chicago area.

'A gazebo needs a garden'

A gazebo for downtown Mount Prospect? A gazebo, that fancy of shady lawns, tree-edged town squares, and quiet glens of yesteryear? A gazebo for music behind a gas station, within whiffing distance of the Yankee Doodle and within easy hearing distance of Northwest Highway and passing freight and passenger trains?

Bully to the Junior Women's Club for providing the materials to Prospect High classes, but if a gazebo is just what Mount Prospect needs this year, wouldn't it be better situated in a park?

Worthy of note

We would like to take this opportunity to express our gratitude and appreciation to the Mount Prospect fire department for their assistance in our emergency situation. The secure feeling we have in knowing that at a phone's reach and within a few minutes help is at hand. They gave the necessary care and were very considerate to us and our mother. Also, we would like to thank the maintenance department of the State of Illinois for alleviating the water problem at the intersection of Camp McDonald and River Roads. The water, which would turn to ice, was causing a hazard for the drivers. We hope the problem there can be solved in the warmer weather, so next winter we wouldn't have to skate through the intersection.

Tales of old on the campaign trail

There are 82 men and women running in contested school board elections in the Northwest suburbs this year — the highest number I've seen in the six years I've covered this sort of thing.

Although the April 10 election is probably not the uppermost thing in your mind today, you can be sure those 82 people — and the five of us on the Education Desk — give it a great deal of thought.

And, as with any election, things will happen during this campaign that will become a part of newsroom folklore — the tales reporters dredge up annually, laugh or sigh about and pass on to new generations of reporters.

WHEN IT COMES to school board elections, there are at least two great tales to tell.

Back in 1957, when today's college sophomores were busy being born, a group of Rolling Meadows residents were plotting to get some representation on the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 Board of Education.

It was a typical school board race. Two Palatine residents were running uncontested for two seats on the board. For all intents and purposes they had won their seats the day they filed their nominating petitions. There was no competition and a low voter turnout was expected.

But a Rolling Meadows alderman was tired of the lack of representation for his small but growing town.

Only one of the seven Dist. 15 board members was from Rolling Meadows. Palatine people won the elections simply because they had more votes in that half of the district.

Dow Jones drops 6 pts., slips below 1,000 mark

DOW JONES AVERAGE
30 Industrials

Mar. 29 1976
DOWN 6.06

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Dow Jones industrial average slipped below the 1,000 level Monday as prices fell during the second slowest trading day of the year on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow average, a 133-point winner Friday, lost 6.06 points to 997.40. It had broken through the magic barrier for the second time this year on March 24 when it finished at a three-year high of 1,009.21.

The blue-chip average closed at 1,003.31 March 11, the first time since Jan. 26, 1973 — when it finished at 1,003.54 — it had pierced the 1,000 level. Each time it reached that high mark, the average has encountered heavy profit-taking pressures.

THE VOLUME of only 16,100,000 shares was down from the 18,510,000 traded Friday and was the slowest since 10,300,000 shares changed hands Jan. 2. "The low volume showed there wasn't any selling panic," said Ralph Acampora, vice president of Smith Barney, Harris Upham.

Other averages did no better than the Dow average. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index slipped 0.44 to 102.41, the NYSE common stock index 0.23 to 54.64 and the average price of an NYSE common share 14 cents.

Of the 1,841 issues crossing the tape, 883 declined, 530 advanced and 428 remained unchanged.

There appeared to be little reaction to the Commerce Department's report its February index of leading economic indicators rose 0.8 per cent. Some investors were expecting a larger increase.

ALEXANDER'S topped the Big Board active, off 5/8 to 7 7/8 on 141,000 shares, including a block of 100,000 shares at 7 5/8. Atlas Corp. followed, up 1/8 to 4 7/8 on 135,500 shares.

F. W. Woolworth, the third most active issue, gained 7/8 to 25 1/2 on 128,400 shares after the company reported fourth quarter earnings rose to $2.05 a share from $1.06 a year ago.

Prices closed lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share decreased by two cents. Volume totaled 2,620,000 shares, compared with 3,140,000 Friday.

And to everyone's surprise, when the votes were counted, he won, beating Gibbs by 49 votes.

The new board convened, and its newest member was as much of a mystery at that point as he was before the election. He attended only one meeting from the time he won election until he resigned by letter in July, citing "unforeseen development with my employment" as the reason.

Gibbs was appointed to the vacancy.

There's a moral to both stories, but they seem so obvious to me, I'll let you figure them out for yourself.

Ironically, Meyer was out of town the day of the election, helping at his wife's parents store in Chicago. Neither he nor his wife cast a ballot that day.

THE SECOND GREAT tale involved another member of the Dist. 15 board, Leland "Bud" Gibbs, a nine-year veteran of the board.

It was a typical election year for Gibbs in 1970, until two newcomers filed nominating petitions for the board, making the race contested. One of the newcomers became a "mystery man" who never showed up for a newspaper interview, never attended a candidates night and did no campaigning.

IN THE UTMOST secrecy, he enlisted the support of both political groups in the city, the Junior Woman's Club, the Little League, PTAs and even the volunteer fire department to find candidates and elect them in one of the all-time great write-in campaigns.

The day before the election they started making phone calls to find candidates. One of them, Joel Meyer, who still sits on the board, was not even aware an election was being held, but agreed to run because of his basic love for kids and education.

There ensued a door-to-door and telephone campaign to get the vote out for the new candidates. Residents were instructed how to mark their ballots and also were told not to go to the polls until a half hour before they closed — so as not to tip off Palatine to what was going on.

And it worked. The voters, 581 strong, descended on Kimball Hill School and cast their ballots. The Rolling Meadows candidates won with 525 and 491 votes compared to the incumbents 391 and 381. Forty-seven of the Rolling Meadows ballots were spoiled by people who forgot to put an X in the box before the write-ins names or wrote their own names and addresses instead.

Ironically, Meyer was out of town the day of the election, helping at his wife's parents store in Chicago. Neither he nor his wife cast a ballot that day.

Jaffe mulls phone book delivery bill

State Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie, has urged his constituents to request all telephone books for the 312 area code next year in response to Illinois Bell's new charge for directory assistance calls.

Jaffe said he is considering introducing legislation in the Illinois General Assembly requiring the phone company to deliver all area code directories to every phone subscriber.

"It would seem the telephone companies have a good thing going," Jaffe said. "While they have fought vigorously for permission to levy an extra penalty charge to their customers who ask for directory assistance, they have not been so zealous in making available to their customers the telephone directories which would decrease their need for the services of '411'."

4 Carter delegates win

Four candidates pledged to former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter and Schaumburg Township Committeeman John Morrissey were elected as delegates to the Democratic National Convention from the 12th Congressional District during the March 16 primary.

Officials in the office of Cook County Clerk Stanley Kasper said the official canvass of votes shows the high vote getter in the Democratic delegate race was Lucille "Jackie" Gallagher of Arlington Heights with 7,004 votes.

Other winners in the 41-person race were State Rep. Daniel Pierce, D-Highland Park, 6,675 votes; Steven Maddock with 6,264; Gwen Martin with 6,031 and Morrissey with 5,742. Morrissey was pledged to Minnesota Sen. Hubert Humphrey.

The two candidates for alternate delegate pledged to Carter were also elected. Rita Zeleny received 6,894 votes and Scott Becker 7,305.

The Democratic delegate race remained in doubt in unofficial returns immediately following the primary. The official canvass confirmed that four delegates pledged to President Gerald Ford were elected to the GOP National Convention from the 12th Congressional District.

Young switches 'gift' stand

Former U.S. Rep. Samuel Young has announced that he will accept contributions from business and labor political action funds in his race against U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva, D-10th.

Young, who was nominated as the Republican candidate against Mikva in the March 16 primary, refused all contributions from political action funds in his unsuccessful 1974 race against Mikva. At that time, he asked Mikva to also refuse the funds, but Mikva declined.

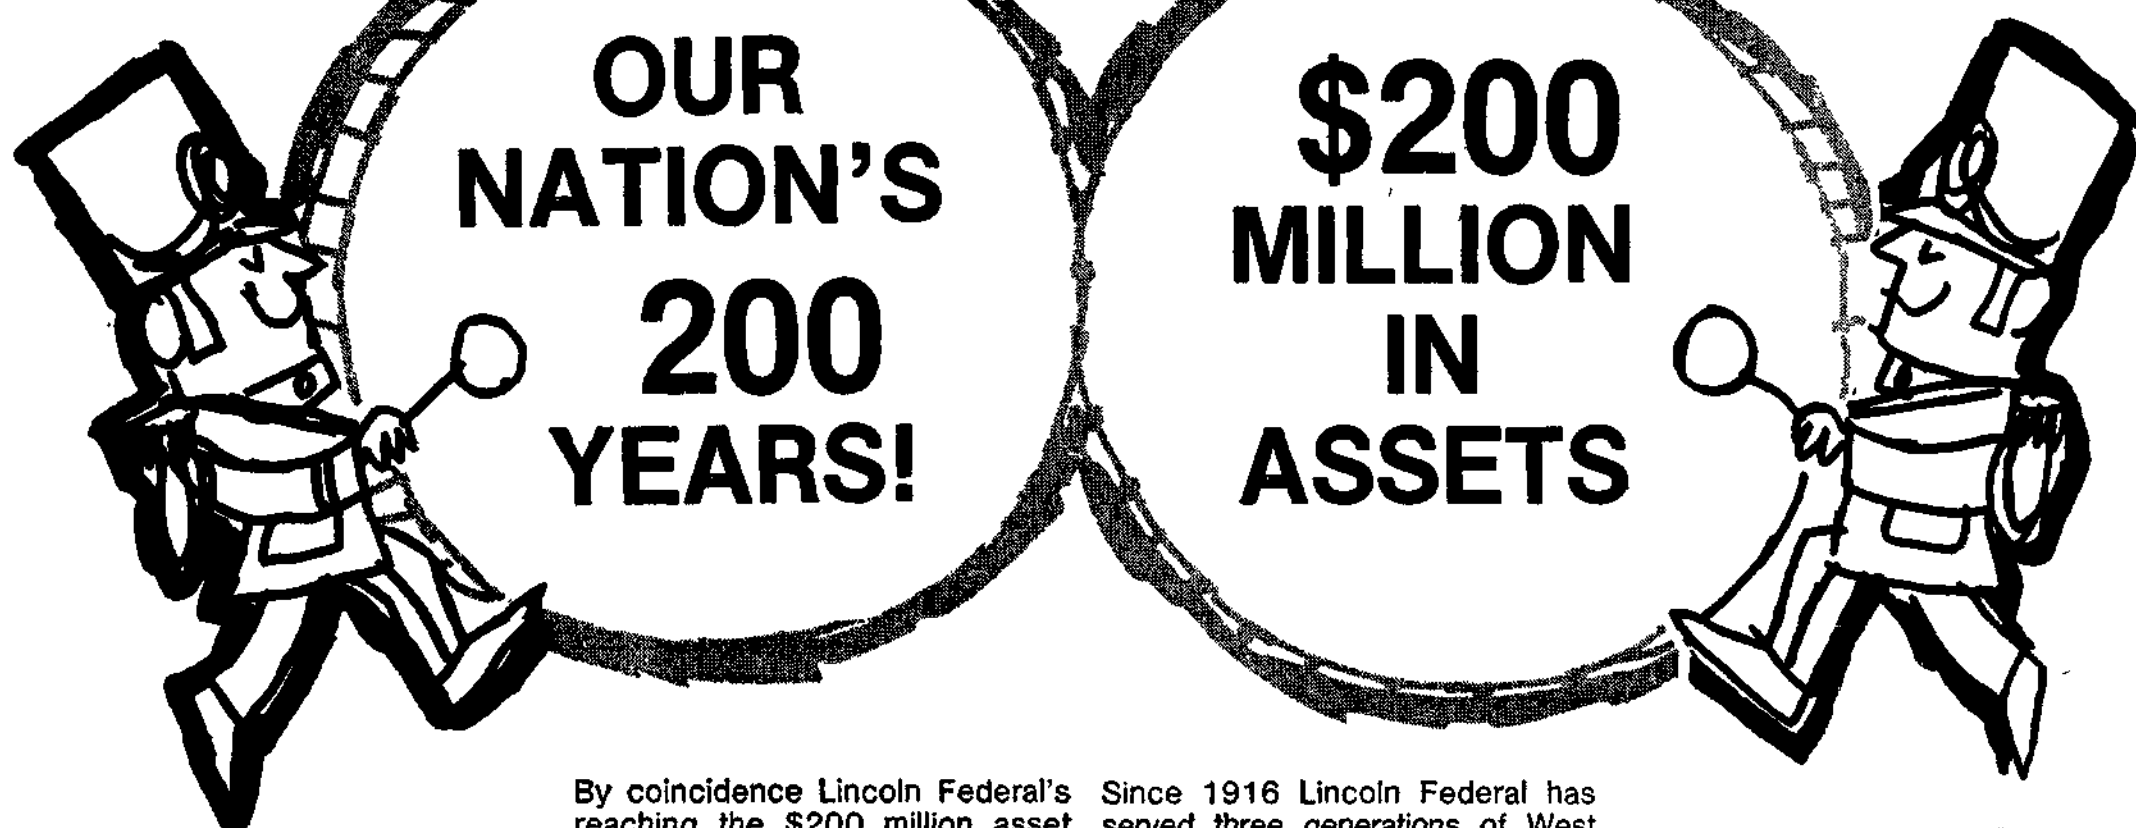

Young said his refusal of the funds in 1974 cost him about $35,000 in donations. An aide said Monday Young has decided to accept the contributions this year because he will need the money to offset Mikva's advantages as an incumbent congressman.

In a prepared statement, Young said, "All contributors to my campaign must do realize that they are contributing to my campaign because they want to support the record that I have made in Congress or they are opposed to the record of my opponent. Further, I have publicly declared that I would prefer that we abolish all PAC (political action) funding for political candidates."

Since 1916 Lincoln Federal has served three generations of West Suburban neighbors. It has striven constantly to be totally involved in its community and the needs of its citizens.

Now operating four offices Lincoln Federal accepts its $200 million stature as a challenge to continue to improve its customer services and community involvement.

Joan Cuzzort gives friendship

An extraordinary volunteer

by BILLIE BACHHUBER

"The best legacy my husband left me is friends. And having friends when I needed them, I want to be a friend to others."

Joan M. Cuzzort, of Arlington Heights has espoused this positive outlook since her husband's death in 1972. Her innate amiability has helped her to cope with widowhood.

Friendly and hospitable, Joan wholeheartedly shares her life with family members, friends, neighbors . . . and as a volunteer. "In giving real service and feeling needed, I get back 10 times more than I give," she confided warmly.

Americana Nursing Home in Arlington Heights recently recognized Joan's exceptional generosity to them. Americana named her "Arlington Heights Volunteer of 1975," citing her as "an extraordinary volunteer and extraordinary human being."

"WE CAN'T BEGIN to enumerate Joan's many acts of thoughtfulness toward our patients and our staff," applauded Jean Ulrich, director of volunteers at Americana. "From the beginning she took a special interest in the needs of our patients and responded generously with her friendship, spending extra time visiting with them, taking them to her home and remembering them on special occasions."

Mrs. Cuzzort began helping out at Americana after husband Jim, a pilot with North Central Airlines was killed in a mid-air collision in 1972. A genial man who had many friends, Jim had encouraged her to be active in the community, Joan recalled.

It was with Jim's backing that Joan first volunteered at Northwest Community Hospital. She joined the hospital's auxiliary in 1970, working at first in a temporary snack shop set up for construction workers, and since has given some 1700 hours of service.

When the snack shop expanded and opened up to hospital visitors, Mrs. Cuzzort worked there, then in obstetrics and at the reception desk. "I meet so many wonderful people there," she said.

AFTER HER HUSBAND'S death, with more time to share, Joan wanted even more to help others. She joined Parishioners of Wayside (POW), a volunteer group at Our Lady of Wayside Catholic Church. It was with this group that Joan offered to escort Americana patients to and from mass and to assist them during services. But she didn't stop at that.

Joan visited with patients without families, asked patients to her home for tea, lunch, to play cards, for special holidays. "I like to give them a change of scenery," she smilingly explained.

Most rewarding for Joan at Americana was helping a severely brain damaged young man with little potential for rehabilitation. Supervised by the professional staff, Joan went in every day for three months to encourage this patient who had severe behavior problems. "He needed me, and I needed him," Mrs. Cuzzort said simply.

"ALL MEMBERS OF our rehab team acknowledge the significant contribution Joan made toward the amazing progress of this young patient. He trusted and respected Joan, and responded for her as he responded for no one else," commented Jean Ulrich. And now that her young friend has been transferred to another facility, Mrs. Cuzzort continues to visit him.

VOLUNTEER Joan Cuzzort, an Arlington Heights widow, is friend to both young and old. At Northwest Community Hospital she cuddles tiny Gregory Sitkiewicz of Mount Prospect as she readies him to go home. On other days she helps the aged at Americana Nursing Home, where she was named a 1975 Volunteer of the Year.

tribution Joan made toward the amazing progress of this young patient. He trusted and respected Joan, and responded for her as he responded for no one else," commented Jean Ulrich. And now that her young friend has been transferred to another facility, Mrs. Cuzzort continues to visit him.

What prompts Joan to help those who need her support and attention? With her husband gone and children (Carol is married, Glenn out of college and on his own, and Douglas, a sophomore away at University of Illinois) grown, Joan does have time. But volunteering to help others means more to her than just filling time.

"For one, you might think you are the only one to have a tragedy. Helping others shows you there are others with problems, many worse off than you are," she said.

So, Joan views life positively. Her health is good, she says. She has a comfortable home, no financial worries . . . and good friends, many good friends. She keeps involved.

MRS. CUZZORT hostesses at least four dinner parties a year, often asks neighbors in on the spur-of-the-moment for cocktails. She entertains guests for holidays, inviting about 10 for Christmas Day.

A bowler, she belongs to Scarsdale Ladies League, and she plays golf, plans to join a league. She enjoys contemporary fiction and reads a lot, gardens, attends local theater, dines out and sees movies. She is taking bridge lessons to improve her game, and plans to play more often. She travels extensively.

"I do what I did before Jim died, and more. I have great neighbors and friends."

For those women who are alone, Joan has this to say: "Do your own thing. Carry on as normal a pattern as you can but add new interests along the way. Don't feel you are alone with this terrible thing that has happened to you, because you are not. Get into something that makes you feel worthwhile whether it's painting, politics, volunteering or whatever."

That's what Joan does. For her, it works.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Stress may aggravate dad's twitching heart

My dad is 58 years of age. He has had atrial fibrillation for two years and takes a digitalis medicine Inderal and Hydrodiuril. The latter is taken for high blood pressure.

Do these medications indicate a serious condition and what do these medicines do for him? Do you think he should change jobs? Dad says he gets along well except when he gets uptight or has to talk on the phone for any lengthy period of time. Then the fibrillation commences and he has to stop and relax a bit.

Atrial fibrillation means that the top collecting sacs of the heart, called the atria, are twitching at a rapid rate, usually around 500 times a minute. Ordinarily the upper part of the heart contracts and squeezes blood into the lower part of the heart before each effective heartbeat. During fibrillation, the upper chambers don't contract and only a few of these twitching movements at a rate of 500 per minute get through to the lower part of the heart. How many get through usually determines how fast the pulse rate is. The pulse is often irregular in these conditions. How a person feels with it also depends on how fast and irregular the pulse rate is. Rapid atrial fibrillation can cause serious disability.

Atrial fibrillation can occur in short attacks like attacks of rapid heart action or be a persistent irregularity. It is not the only cause for irregular heart beats, however. Premature contractions or extra beats, originating from either the atria at the top of the heart or ventricles from the bottom of the heart, can cause irregularities of the heart. For more information about these problems send 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 6-12, Heart Irregularities, Skipped Beats, Tachycardias. THE IMPORTANCE of atrial fibrillation depends on what causes it. It can occur in relatively healthy individuals with no apparent underlying heart disease. Even in this condition if the heart rate is too rapid, it can be disabling just like attacks of rapid heart action. It can also be caused by acute illness such as severe diarrhea or following a bout of alcoholism or as a complication of a more serious illness such as a recent heart attack or other forms of underlying heart disease.

The fact that your father has high blood pressure and is taking medicine for it implies that he has underlying heart disease. He may be taking the digitalis medicine to strengthen his heartbeat or help control his heart rate and fibrillation. The Inderal is also designed to help prevent irritability of his heart and protect him against such attacks. These are commonly used medicines in this situation.

Only your doctor can tell you for sure what your dad's status is since he has his records and knows the severity of his high blood pressure and other medical factors.

That means your doctor is going to have to tell you whether he should or should not change jobs. It is true that stress and tension can sometimes aggravate underlying medical conditions.

Reader shares four coffee mix recipes

Dear Dorothy: How nice I can give you some tips instead of asking for help. Here are four different coffee mixes. Mix the following and shake in a quart container: Three-fourths cups cocoa mix, one-half cup instant coffee, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon cloves and one-fourth cup powdered coconut. Put a heaping teaspoon of this mix in a cup and fill with hot water.

No. 2: Two and one-half cups powdered milk, one-third cup cocoa, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoon salt and one-half teaspoon nutmeg. Put two heaping teaspoons of this in a cup and fill with hot water or hot milk.

No. 3: Put one-third cup powdered milk in a cup, then add one-half teaspoon cinnamon and a shake of nutmeg. Fill with hot water.

No. 4: One teaspoon coffee, one teaspoon powdered coconut and one cup hot water. — Lois Dawson

Dear Dorothy: I've spoiled my "his nubs" and for a long time have been changing the collars on his lovely cotton shirts when they have shown wear. When he'd show me one that had sewed-in stays, I'd say it couldn't be done and passed. Relaxed the other day and ripped out such a collar, pulled out the stays, ripped out the two sets of stitching and the collar was ready to be turned — like any other. — Hope Carbrini

Dear Dorothy: Please tell the reader who asked about saving scorched food to first run cold water over the bottom of the too-hit pan before emptying good food into a fresh pan. It will remove any possible taste or odor from the scorched food. — Winnie Conrad

I'm intrigued, but can't figure how you run water over the bottom of a hot pan containing food. With a power spray attachment perhaps? Might dipping the pan in cold water also do it?

Group helps mothers who lose their babies

by DALE SINGER

To a mother who has lost a newborn child, many signals can trigger a flood of painful memories years after the baby's death.

An offer for a free portrait of the child who never lived to leave the hospital, the anniversaries of the child's birth, the first day of school for a neighbor child born about the same time her child was born — all of these can renew the grief of a bereaved mother.

To help mothers deal with these feelings, not to forget the child, but to handle the pain, St. Louis mothers who have lost babies have formed a unique group known as AMEND — Aiding a Mother Experiencing Neonatal Death.

The mothers, aided by psychiatric counselors and physicians, act as a corps of concerned and trained friends. They all have had other children and stand as proof that the loss of a newborn is not the end of motherhood.

SUCH HELP was not always available and it is appreciated. "That's a terrible thing to have to carry around all by yourself," said Colleen Nemanick, an attorney who lost a child four years ago.

"It's not just telling the mothers, 'I think I know how you feel,' Maureen Connolly, another organizer of the group, said. "It's more, saying 'I know how you feel because I've had your feelings.'"

Since its formation late in 1974, AMEND has helped more than 20 mothers, who are referred by their doctors or by the nurses in the hospital where the baby dies.

The nurses themselves are not always the best source of comfort, Mrs. Connolly said.

"Some nurses tell the mothers they have an angel," she said. "We had one woman who had lost three babies.

The nurse came in and said, 'You have an angel in heaven,' and she said back, 'I don't want an angel. I want a real live baby to love and to hold.'"

JACQUELYN WHEELER and Louise Felts, professionals who aid in the counseling, said the help offered by AMEND enables mothers to work through a normal cycle of grief — shock, guilt, anger, an inability to function and, finally, acceptance.

"The adjustment is not to put a damper on the grief but to open it up," Mrs. Felts said. "You have to go through some sad and painful feeling."

"A stillborn is a baby, and a baby who lived two weeks is a baby," Mrs. Nemanick said. "The baby is dead and that's what matters."

"And the grief is still the same," Mrs. Wheeler added.

"Nobody wants to acknowledge that this baby had any impact on her life," Mrs. Nemanick said. "They give you two weeks to get over it, then they withdraw their support, just when you need it most. That's when it really hits you what has happened."

"SO OFTEN THE father really wanted a child," Mrs. Wheeler said, "and a mother feels she not only lost a baby, she failed her husband as well."

"The mothers usually want to talk a lot," Mrs. Connolly said. "There are hardly ever lulls in the conversation. We're trained to be good listeners."

"It gets a little sticky when someone asks how many children you have," said Mrs. Connolly, who lost a child 15 years ago. "I have five living children, but I feel I'm the mother of six."

"One woman called and said she was still crying after three months, and wanted to know if that was normal. We told her it took nine months for her to carry that baby. Three months is a short time to get over the loss."

Ask Andy

Mosquito causes variety of ills

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's Yearbook of Science and the Future to Eric Roehl, 12, of Graham, Wash., for his question:

WHAT DISEASES CAN BE CAUSED BY MOSQUITO BITES?

Pleasant summer evenings are often ruined by uninvited company. Pecky mosquitoes descend in droves, announcing their unwelcome arrival with a persistent high-pitched buzz. When these fellows show up on the scene, mere mortals have but two choices — a good rubdown with insect repellent or a trip back inside the house with a few comments about insects in general and mosquitoes in particular.

There are more than 2,500 different kinds of mosquitos living in the world today, and almost all of them are a pain in the neck — or wherever else they choose to bite. Actually, mosquitos don't bite. They are equipped with a very effective beaklike structure called a proboscis. This proboscis is used like a hypodermic needle to puncture your skin and leave you with a maddening itch.

The male mosquito is strictly a vegetarian — he couldn't bite you if he wanted to. It is the female that causes the trouble. Thousands of people die each year, and countless manhours of work are lost because of the diseases spread by this superpest. Many domestic and wild animals and birds also fall prey to sickness transmitted by the mosquito.

Perhaps the most widespread of the mosquito-carried diseases is malaria, with yellow fever a close second. Dengue filariasis and certain types of encephalitis are other diseases that can result from an unlucky bite. Many of the mosquitos that spread diseases live in the hot, humid lands near the equator. Sad to say, however, mosquitos live in almost every part of the world, and to escape them completely you would have to live in the frozen world of the Arctic or in the driest desert.

Male mosquitos live 10 to 20 days, but the female lives about 30 days. In this short time, she may lay as many as 2,000 eggs. Most eggs are laid in water and may hatch in as little as 16 hours. Eggs that are laid in a dry spot require water to hatch, and when the necessary water arrives, they may hatch in less than an hour. Each species of mosquito is very particular where her eggs are deposited.

The eggs hatch into wormlike larvae called wigglers. In time, the wigglers change into pupae and finally into adults. The complete cycle may take two or three weeks or even a year, depending on the species and where it lives.

Scientists are waging a constant war to control the population of undesirable pests. This is not an easy task, for the trick is to get rid of the bad guys without harming the numerous beneficial insects. A modern and ecologically sound method is the widespread release of sterile adult males.

Andy sends a student globe to Eric McKenzie, 8, of Florence, S. C., for his question:

WHEN A HORSE IS SHOD, DOES IT HURT?

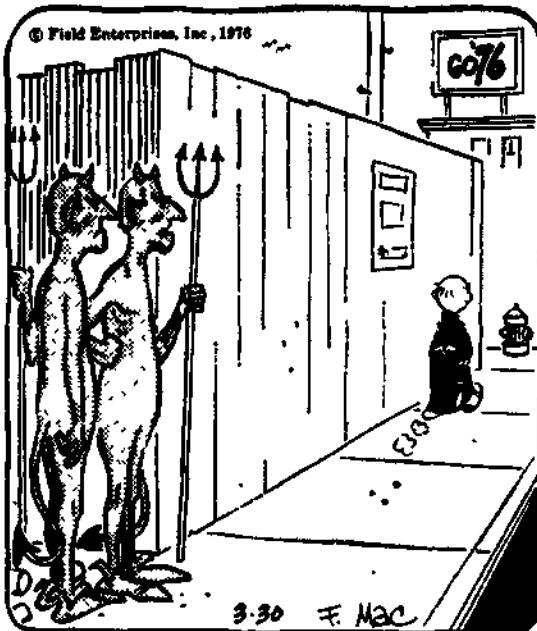

The practice of putting shoes on horses goes back about 2,000 years. And we can be glad that the horses do not feel any pain in the process, just as we feel no pain when our nails are cut. The horse's hoof is actually the enormously enlarged pail of the third toe. The steel shoe is attached with nails to the wall, or shell, of the hoof.

This wall is completely insensitive, and although shodding must be redone periodically, most horses accept the process with stoical good nature.

'I Love Lucy' now plays at divorce

by JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — In case you hadn't noticed, it's rerun time on television — even before the violets are in bloom. To take the curse off repeats, and to make them last until summer, the networks are preempting a lot these days.

One such special comes up today at 9 p.m. on CBS. "What Now, Catherine Curtis?" starring Lucille Ball is a comedy-drama trilogy on the first year of single blessedness in the life of a woman whose marriage has come apart.

Lucy plays a woman moving into a Manhattan apartment after 23 years of marriage, suburbia, two children and a husband who played around.

IN THE FIRST segment, Lucy walks into the packing crate and suitcase debris that is her new apartment and alternately laughs, cries, pities herself, exudes anger toward her ex, and chews the scenery in the kind of monologue actresses adore.

The second episode brings in Art Carney as a carpenter.

It's three months since Miss Ball began living alone and she sets her sights for Carney, archly flirting and practically crawling onto his lap.

Carney, a widower, at first backs off, but eventually offers her the touch of romance she needs.

Spirited, lively 'Raisin' retains a powerful punch

Mid-week review

by GENIE CAMPBELL

The time is the 1960s. The setting is the South Side of Chicago. A black family, existing day-to-day in a mood of "quiet desperation," find their lives exploding into a whirlwind of conflicts and unfulfilled dreams as they await the arrival of a legacy, $10,000, from a matured life insurance policy.

Recognize the storyline? One should. It's Lorraine Hansberry's classic, "A Raisin in the Sun." And it's still every bit as powerful and stirring as when first staged more than 15 years ago.

But modern day has made some changes. Like turning it into a musical. Substitute the most minimal of props and backdrops for the usual, cluttered tenement apartment setting, and cut out part of the emotionally charged dialog for spirited, free-form dancing and warm lyrics instead, and you've set the stage for "Raisin" now at the Shubert Theatre for six weeks.

as the male lead in "Don't Bother Me, I Can't Cope." He plays the restless son who turns on to the $10,000 like a drug-hungry addict. Walter Lee equates freedom with money and openly despairs when his dream appears crushed. A strong male vocal, Paige's overall demeanor supports the show.

Also featured is Mary Seymour as his wife Ruth, and Darren Green as his son, Travis.

Arnetta Walker adds the most color as sister Beneatha Younger, who has dreams of her own of becoming a doctor. She keeps her family and the audience amused with lively spontaneous ideas and behavior.

THERE ISN'T A number in "Raisin" that doesn't work. And the variety is endless, from gentle ballads to rousing gospel and even one intoxicating, tribal beat-inspired piece. And the dancing coincides accordingly.

"A Raisin in the Sun" occasionally tended to run long and heavy. The sparkle and fun injected into "Raisin" erases the chances.

It's just unfortunate that Lorraine Hansberry who at the age of 28 was both the first black dramatist and youngest American to win the New York Drama Critics Best Play of the Year Award, never had the opportunity to see "Raisin" or for that matter, offer any more of her talent. She died in 1964 at the age of 34.

Bicentennial bell ringing urged

Another Bicentennial gimmick is reported out of Providence, R.I., where the Freedom Bell Society of America is encouraging all Americans to ring bells at noon July 4.

The society has an assortment of well-known names listed as members of its honorary national committee.

It also is promoting the sale of a Freedom Bell at $19.76. An unspecified portion of the money spent on Freedom Bells will be used to improve the surroundings at Independence Hall and other historic buildings in Philadelphia, the society said.

Comedian Bob Hope is honorary chairman of the Freedom Bell Society. Others listed on the national committee include Lucille Ball, John Denver, Pat Nixon, Guy Lombardo and Arnold Palmer.

In addition to individual bell ringing, the society is encouraging the ringing of bells at churches and temples throughout the nation.

Experts rely on safety play

The late Philip Hal Sims was a giant in every way. He stood six foot three and weighed around 300 pounds that didn't include much fat. He was unquestionably the greatest auction bridge player and no slouch at the game of contract.

Today's hand was misplayed by Oswald Jacoby (then a very young player). Sims, who was watching, said, "You really chucked that one."

Jacoby won the diamond lead in dummy, played the king of trumps

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby and was down one when East showed out on the second lead of the suit.

Today, every expert knows the standard safety play with this combination. You lead a heart to your ace at trick two and then lead back to ward dummy. If West plays a low heart you stick in dummy's nine. This will lose a trick to a doubleton queen, but that will be all you lose. Against the actual holding of four to the queen-10 in the West hand you also lose one trick but not two.

Suppose East held four to the queen-10. West would show out. You would rise with dummy's king and lead a third trump toward your jack.

Suppose the trumps broke 5-0. You would have to play off.

Canada has more than Olympics in '76

by CLAUDE LEMIEUX

More than 100,000 visitors a day are expected in Montreal during the 1976 Summer Olympic Games July 17-Aug. 1. Several nearby cities and resort areas are also gearing up for the influx of tourists that will undoubtedly include many planning side trips to other parts of the country.

It's just a short hop from Montreal to the cities of Ottawa (120 miles); Kingston, Ontario (185 miles); or Quebec City (160 miles). The Laurentians and the Eastern Townships, two popular resort areas, are even closer.

OTTAWA

Ottawa, Canada's capital, with a population of just 300,000 isn't a large city by world standards. But it is an attractive city partly because it is virtually free of heavy industry. There are no towering smoke stacks to darken the sky, no unsightly industrial districts, no ghettos and no traffic snarls.

Ottawa is a city of parks, flowers, museums and elegant embassies. Visitors may join a conducted tour of the Parliament Buildings and go up in the 300-foot Peace Tower, from which the whole city and surrounding area can be seen.

There is free admission in Ottawa to:

- The National Gallery, with its Rembrandts, El Grecos, Cezannes and Picassos.

- The Canadian War Museum, a collection of weapons and war equipment from colonial times to modern days.

- The National Museum of Man and the Museum of Natural Sciences, two museums in one building depicting the history of man and his environment.

- The National Museum of Science and Technology, which displays huge locomotives, vintage cars, air and sea transport equipment, antique farm machinery, a physics hall, developments in communications, meteorology and other exhibits.

- The National Aeronautical Collection, home of more than 50 aircraft, including the Silver Dart (1908), a Spitfire, a Harvard Trainer, helicopters, bombers, jets and the little WWI Sopwith Camel, brought out of mothballs by Snoopy, the flying Beagle of the Peanut comic strip.

- The Central Experimental Farm, 1,300 acres of flowers, prize cattle and an arboretum with 1,700 trees and shrubs from many lands.

- The National Postal Museum, one of the finest stamp collections in the world. It has a turn-of-the-century post office that offers special museum cancellations for cards and letters mailed at the museum.

Ottawa also has the National Arts Centre, an ultra-modern showcase for the performing arts with a 2,300-seat opera house.

There are boat cruises on the Rideau Canal and the Ottawa River and British-style double-decker sight-seeing buses.

Across the Ottawa River in Quebec is the 164-square mile Gatineau Park, only 10 minutes from downtown Ottawa. The park is a wildlife sanctuary with parkways, lookouts, beaches, picnic sites, nature trails and campgrounds.

There are a number of fine hotels, good restaurants and excellent shopping facilities in Ottawa.

KINGSTON

THE HISTORIC city of Kingston is Canada's other Olympic City; site for the Olympic yachting events.

It was a trading post as early as 1673, but soon became an important military and naval stronghold. Today, the roar of cannons and the crack of muskets are heard only in ceremonies staged for the benefit of tourists.

Kingston now is the home of Queen's University and the Royal Military College, Canada's West Point, but its past military importance is evident everywhere.

Old Ft. Henry, one of Canada's best-known attractions, was built in 1812, later abandoned and completely restored in 1938. Its museum and the precision drill and maneuvers of the Fort Guard draw thousands of visitors each year.

Ft. Frederick contains an interesting museum and the nearby Murren Redoubt is possibly the finest Martello tower on the continent. A Martello tower is a small, circular fort and this one has walls 15 feet thick.

Kingston has its Pump House Steam Museum, the Royal Signals Museum and Bellevue House, a former home of Canada's first prime minister, Sir John A. Macdonald.

The fortress city is also the starting point for a 65-mile cruise among the 1,000 Islands.

QUEBEC

The city, capital of Quebec Province, is often referred to as the split-level city with two voices because much of it is high on a cliff, overlooking the St. Lawrence River. In addition, most of its inhabitants speak both French and English.

Quebec also is called North America's most "European" city and is the only walled city on the continent north of Mexico.

A natural citadel, Quebec was founded more than 350 years ago and has a charm all its own.

It was once the capital of a territory that included most of the United States and Canada of today.

The old city abounds with history. Fortifications and buildings have been restored to their original state, and more are being excavated each year.

In 1775, two expeditions against Quebec were launched from the 13 American colonies.

The first, led by Gen. Richard Montgomery, took the Lake Champlain route on its way to capture Montreal, while the other, led by Col. Benedict Arnold, went up the Kennebec and down the Chaudiere River on its way to Quebec. Montgomery was killed New Year's Eve at a Quebec barricade while Arnold was driven back after suffering severe losses.

It is interesting to note that Montgomery had once been a British officer stationed at Quebec before he decided to side with the Americans.

Several historic churches, ancient stone buildings, narrow winding streets and exceptional restaurants are concentrated in an area of the city easily covered on foot.

The Dufferin Terrace, in front of the Chateau Frontenac hotel and 200 feet above Lower Town, is a favorite of both tourists and native Quebec residents.

The chateau, on the site of an earlier historic building, will go down in history as the meeting place of Roosevelt and Churchill on two occasions during WWII.

Place d'Armes, next to the chateau, is a quaint little square where tourists can board a two-wheel, horse-drawn caleche for a tour of the city.

Just off Place d'Armes is the one-block rue du Tresor where artists display and sell their drawings and paintings.

From a kiosk atop Cape Diamond, 350 feet above the river, one can stroll down the Promenade des Gouverneurs to the western end of Dufferin Terrace.

At the eastern end of the terrace, an elevator takes visitors to Lower Town for a visit of historic Notre-Dame-des-Victoires Church, Place Royale and several renovated buildings, dating back to the French regime.

The Ursuline Convent has a splendid chapel and an interesting museum and the Rue des Remparts, high on a cliff, is lined by old cannons.

Just outside St. Louis Gate, one of the three gates leading to the old city, visitors can turn left onto the National Battlefields Park, better known to Quebec residents as the Plains of Abraham.

This is where France lost an empire in 1759 when Wolfe defeated Montcalm in a battle that lasted only 15 minutes and proved fatal to both generals.

The 235-acre park is beautifully landscaped with many walks and driveways high above the St. Lawrence. The battle is explained on tablets fixed on granite bases throughout the park, which is also the site of the provincial museum, two Martello towers and several monuments.

In the immediate vicinity of Quebec are Montserrat Falls, the highest in eastern Canada, the famous Sainte-Anne-de-Beaupre shrine, a zoo and an extensive aquarium.

THE LAURENTIANS

Just north of Montreal, along the Autoroute des Laurentides, is the greatest concentration of summer and winter resorts in Canada.

The mountains in this area, known as the Laurentians, are the oldest in the world. It is a fun region of international reputation, popular with Canadians and Americans since the last century.

The territory is dotted with lakes and laced with fast streams, and has unsurpassed facilities for sports, excellent hotels and the finest of cuisine.

There are more than 35 golf courses in the Laurentians, between 30 and 80 miles from downtown Montreal. This tourist paradise also offers sailing, water skiing, riding, canoeing, mountain climbing, swimming, tennis and other sports, plus great evening entertainment in most hotels.

The 990-square mile Mont Tremblant Park is exceptionally beautiful with its lakes, rivers and innumerable brooks and waterfalls.

In the park's high mountains are 27 species of mammals, 114 species of birds, 18 species of fish and 407 different plants.

It is truly a nature lover's paradise and has miles of nature trails as well as boats for rent. Names like Saint-Jovite, Val David and Sainte-Agathe have been on tourist maps here for generations.

THE EASTERN TOWNSHIPS

East of Montreal, the Eastern Townships of Quebec attract large numbers of visitors each year, many of them Americans from just across the border.

For the first few miles out of Montreal, the fertile plain is broken only by the Monadnocks, isolated mountains that rise starkly from the plain in an area once covered by the Champlain Sea. They provide an oasis of shade and verdure in an otherwise flat but rich farming district.

The mountains are natural parks, home to a variety of wildlife and are popular with nature lovers, skiers and mountain climbers.

The Eastern Townships were settled by United Empire Loyalists, who moved north at the time of the American Revolution, and by demobilized British soldiers.

The descendants of these English-speaking settlers have gradually moved to the larger cities or to the west, so that by today, more French than English is heard in the townships. However, English names on the township map still outnumber French ones by more than three to one.

Sherbrooke, the Queen of the Eastern Townships, is a major industrial center with a population of 80,000. The city, the largest in the area, was first named Hyatt's Mill in 1796 after Vermont loyalist Gilbert Hyatt who built his mill here. Its name was changed by Gov.-Gen. Lord Sherbrooke after he visited the community.

Granby, population 38,000, is famous for its antique auto museum and its zoo containing 300 species of animals. Throughout the city, there are unusual fountains brought from Europe.

The 15-square-mile Mont Orford Park has excellent campgrounds, fishing, canoeing, mountain climbing. In winter, it is a popular ski resort. There is a good view of the surrounding countryside and Vermont from the top of the 2,750-foot Mont Orford.

Most of Lake Memphremagog lies in Quebec, but its southern tip is in Vermont. It has a marina and boat cruises are available from Magog, Quebec to Newport, Vt.

Benedictine monks can be seen and heard singing their Gregorian chants at St-Benoit-du-Lac and the archi-ecture of Bishop's University at Lennoxville has been clearly inspired by England's Oxford.

The largest and most important asbestos mines in the world are located at Asbestos and Thetford Mines.

Campsite reservation line opens

Care-Free Camping of Hoffman Estates offers subscribers the use of a toll-free telephone reservation service to obtain guaranteed campsite reservations in any franchised or private independent campground in the continental United States.

The service is designed to eliminate problems campers often experience in arriving at campgrounds too late or without reservations, only to find no available space.

Members also may use a toll-free emergency locator service that allows subscribers to be reached by family or friends when emergency situations develop at home. Weather or vehicle problems, which could delay campers, also are handled with a toll-free telephone call to revise reservations or receive service or parts.

TO REGISTER for the service, members pay an initial $10 fee, plus an annual service fee of $15 for each May 15 to Sept. 15 season. Group rates are available.

To acquaint campers with the service, Care-Free Camping currently is making a special trial offer for anyone planning to camp in Florida during the school Easter vacation, April 17-25.

For this period only, the company will use its extensive cross-reference file on the top-rated campgrounds in Florida to make reservations at the best campsite available at the time of the request, for a fee of $2.

For further information on the special Florida camping offer or becoming a regular subscriber, phone 800-323-6893 or write Box 597, Hoffman Estates, Ill. 60172.

Washington D.C. is no place for pets

Bicentennial Washington is no place for pets, the Humane Society warns, so visitors should leave their animals at home.

Society Pres. John A. Hoyt said many hotels and motels don't permit pets. Animals left in the car during Washington's torrid summer temperatures can suffer permanent brain damage or die.

"Tourists who don't have kennel reservations before they leave home will find 'there's no room at the inn' for Rover or Kitty," Hoyt said.

Telecare call could be a lifesaver blood pressure. The oldest caller is 82. Should a caller need immediate medical help, Telecare would phone the family doctor or paramedics in the caller's village.

Volunteers believe Telecare is for everyone, not just the elderly. "There are young handicapped people who live alone and who don't want to be a burden to anyone," Dorothy Kressmann, a Telecare volunteer from Mount Prospect, said. "It doesn't matter how old or young you are if you need someone to know you're all right."

Monday mornings the conversations are usually brief. The callers seem talked out from the weekend when they may have had friends or families visit. Other days the callers feel like talking.

A SCHOOL TEACHER who had never married and who lives alone in Arlington Heights began telling Mrs. Williams about a career she had pursued outside her classroom. Could Mrs. Williams guess what it was, the woman asked. After two wrong tries, Mrs. Williams gave up and the woman confessed she had been a bird caller and had been heard on the radio.

"So I asked her to do one for me and she told me to wait a minute, she had to take out her dentures first," Mrs. Williams said with a laugh.

Another morning, a caller hadn't phoned in by the 11 a.m. deadline, so the volunteer called her. After getting no answer the volunteer called the woman's neighbor. "Don't worry, she's still alive," the neighbor said of the Arlington Heights woman who was more than 70 years old. "She's downstairs working on her car and forgot to call."

Telecare's volunteers are members of the hospital's women's auxiliary and include two doctors' wives. They've placed Telecare brochures and applications in apartments and drug stores throughout the area. One druggist in Palatine told Mrs. Williams he thought Telecare was a "wonderful idea."

"HE TOLD ME about a man who felt terrible and came in to fill a prescription," Mrs. Williams said. After his prescription was filled, the man returned to his home where he lived alone. Five days later he was found dead.

"Maybe we could have helped him if he had been in Telecare," Mrs. Williams said. "We would have called."

Telecare is free and available to the public. For more information, call Telecare or the women's auxiliary at Northwest Community Hospital.

TELECARE volunteer Dorothy Kressmann of Mount Prospect takes another call from one of 12 persons who phone daily.

Indiana stuns spirited Michigan, 86-68

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Unde-feated Indiana, trailing by 6 points at halftime to surprising Michigan, went to its pair of All-Americans Kent Benson and Scott May in the second half Monday night to defeat the Wolverines 86-68 and win the 1976 NCAA basketball championship.

Benson and May combined for 27 of Indiana's first 36 points in the second half as the Hoosiers, who had beaten Big Ten rival Michigan twice during the regular season, gained a 65-59 lead with slightly less than six minutes left in the game. May finished with a game-high 26 points and Benson had 25.

Indiana, which gained the six-point lead on a basket by May, added eight straight more points for a 73-59 margin to guarantee their record-tying 32nd victory of the season.

Indiana, which had lost only once in the past two seasons, became only the fourth school to win the national championship with an undefeated record in the 38-year history of the NCAA tournament. The Hoosiers tied the 1957 North Carolina Tar Heels for the most victories in an undefeated season.

In the earlier third place consolation game at the Spectrum, Marques Johnson and Andre McCarter combined for 56 points to lead UCLA to a 106-92 victory over Rutgers.

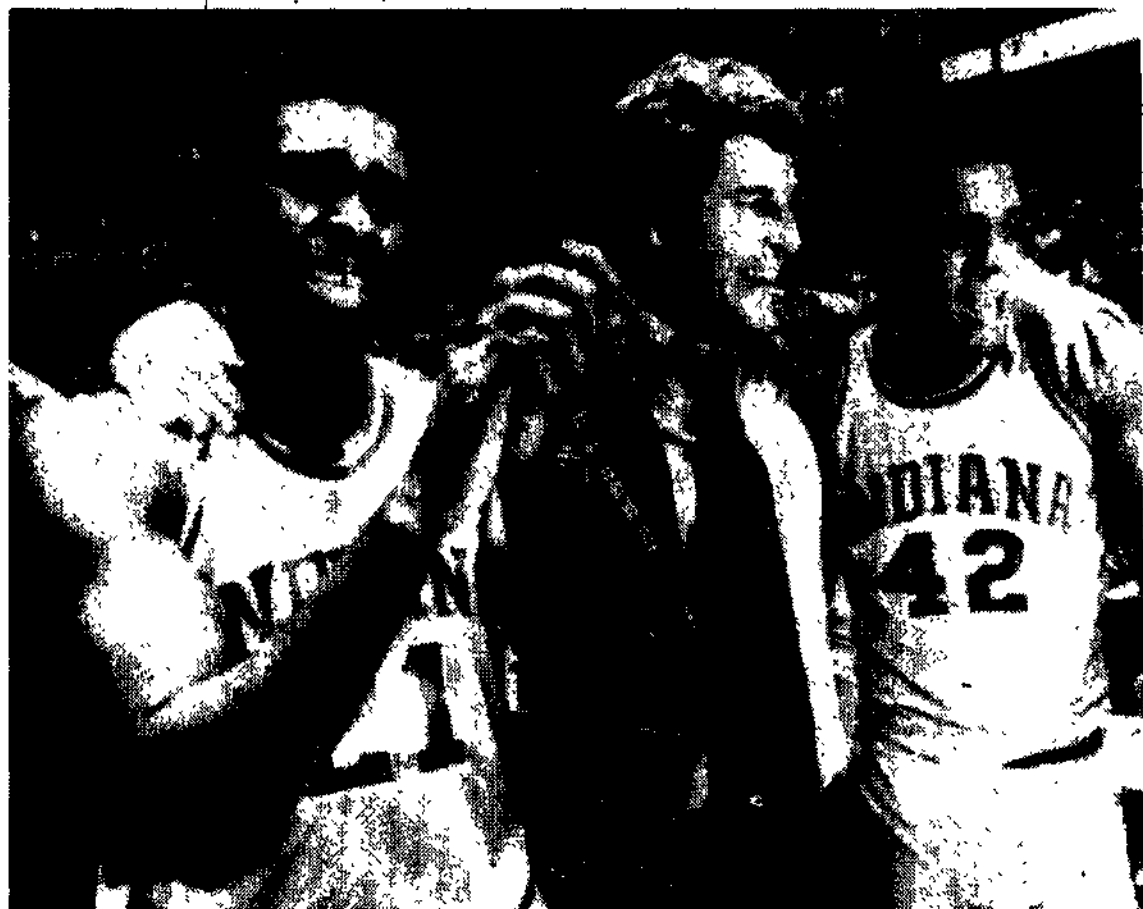

Indiana Coach Bobby Knight became the first ever to win national championships as a player and a coach. He was a member of Ohio State's 1960 national champions.

The victory touched off a jubilant dance by the fiercely aggressive but usually stoic Hoosiers. On the court awaiting the awards ceremony, the Indiana team popped open a bottle of champagne, and waved the bubbly beverage triumphantly around the floor.

Guard Quinn Buckner, a senior co-captain benched during midseason for poor play, was awarded the honor of cutting down the net after scoring 16 points and doing a superb defensive job on Michigan's Rickey Green. Buckner's value was increased early in the game when the Hoosiers' other starting guard Bobby Wilkerson was carried from the court with a moderate concussion.

But it was the outstanding performances of May and Benson that finally wore down the Wolverines, who had come closer to beating the Hoosiers

No panic for Hoosiers at intermission

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Kent Benson and Scott May, the two-man juggernaut that carried Indiana into the NCAA championship game with an undefeated record, overcame a six-point halftime deficit Monday night and lift the Hoosiers to the 1976 national championship.

It was the pair of All-Americans who scored 27 of Indiana's first 36 points in the second half to overcome a six-point halftime deficit Monday night and lift the Hoosiers to an 86-68 victory.

After leading the Hoosier scoring with 26 points, May said, "I knew somebody would have to pick up the slack and that's what I tried to do."

But it was Benson's second half drives to the basket that proved the undoing of the Wolverines, who had lost a pair of regular season games to the Hoosiers.

Michigan Coach Johnny Orr said, "In the second half, he really came on and when he shot he made it. He got us into foul trouble."

Indiana trailed at halftime, 35-29, but kept its composure to eventually wear down the Wolverines in the second half.

"There was no panic," May said. "From experience, we knew we had to keep driving, keep on hustling and keep on running."

Fishing licenses expire Wednesday

Illinois anglers are reminded that 1976 resident hook and line fishing licenses expire Wednesday. New licenses may be purchased at most sporting goods store in the area for $2.25.

In addition to the regular license, anglers who will be wading a line for trout or salmon must also purchase a new state salmon stamp that will cost $2.25.

The revenue produced from the sale of the trout and salmon stamp will be directed to the new fish hatchery slated for construction near Peoria.

The rainbow trout stockings that are scheduled for Axehed, Belleau and Sag Quarry Wednesday will be followed by a three-day, no-fishing period during which time the young trout can become adjusted to their new environment.

When fishing resumes on Saturday, though, the trout and salmon stamp will be required for all anglers. The stamp is available from the state's license distribution system.

Thursday officially marks the opening of the smelt season along Chicago's lakefront. The season will run from 7 p.m. Thursday to 3 p.m. Monday, May 10.

Dip netters may fish on Chicago Park District property only during the period of 7 p.m. to 3 a.m.

Under the rules for smelt fishing, anglers may use only portable equipment that can be set up and dismantled in the same 24-hour period. No drilling of holes or permanent fixing of equipment is permitted. Each person will be allowed only one net.

Smelt must be taken with a gill net or dip net that must not exceed 12 feet in length, 6 feet in depth and have a mesh size greater than 1 1/2 inches diagonal stretch. Dip nets are restricted to 12 feet in diameter and a mesh size of not less than one inch diagonal stretch.

No shelters or fires are permitted and intoxicants or the sale of fish on park property is prohibited. A state license is required for smelt anglers.

Title to what is considered the most significant natural area in Illinois was transferred to the Illinois Dept. of Conservation from the Illinois Chapter of the Nature Conservancy.

The Nature Conservancy, an Evans-ton-based non-profit organization, granted title of the 2,515-acre Little Black Slough in Johnson County, the largest unprotected wilderness area in the state.

The site will be opened to visitors beginning Thursday provided they stop at Ferne Clyffe State Park to get maps and a user permit. The area is accessible by taking Rte. 57 south to Rte. 148, just south of Goreville.

Two marked trails provide access to the middle of the wilderness area of the Little Black Slough and the adjacent nature preserve Heron Pond.

The Heron Pond nature trail is 2.5 miles in length and the Little Black Slough trail is 6.5 miles long and follows the Wildcat Bluff before descending into the Cache River valley and extending onto Boss Island.

Fishing reports are improving in perennial spring hotspots. Limits of coho salmon are the rule rather than the exception in Lake Michigan waters off Michigan City, Ind.

And although dangerous ice movements are plaguing boaters attempting to fish the Wolf River in Wisconsin, persistent anglers are taking big, spawning walleyes in the 4-7 pound range.

The reliable Wolf River rig — a three-way swivel with the reel line, a weight and a live minnow — is working the magic.

Six repeat on MSL's all-star cage team

Seven of the Mid-Suburban League's 13 varsity girls' basketball teams landed players on the second annual all-conference team. Six of the athletes are repeat performers.

Recently picked by the league coaches, MSL champion Fremd was one of six teams having two players each. Earning berths from Fremd were senior Heidi Giesler and junior Connie Bruns.

Giesler, who made the select team last year, led the league in assists (6.8) and was the sixth leading scorer (14.8). Bruns was third in scoring (15.8) and fourth in assists (3.0).

Conant, which finished second in the league, was led by seniors Linda Webb and Kathy Evans. Webb, who repeated from last season, was second in scoring (17.3) and eighth in rebounding (11.0). Evans was second in league assists (4.0).

Wheeling, third-place finisher, placed Sandy Rainey and Lee Ann Paulsen on this select team. Rainey, a sophomore, was fourth in scoring (15.5) with Paulsen, a senior, fifth (15.0). Both made the 1974-75 all-star team.

Fourth-place Forest View was led by juniors Debbie Brinkman and Nancy Lancaster. Brinkman was the league's fourth leading rebounder (13.0).

Hoffman Estates, which placed third in the South Division of the MSL, was paced by the 1-2 punch of senior Clare Dowling and sophomore Tracey Farrish. Dowling, landing a berth for the second straight year, led the league in scoring (21.5). Farrish finishing in ninth place (13.3).

League statistics in scoreboard

Buffalo Grove, third-place finisher in the North Division, was led by a pair of sophomores — Joyce Gallagher and Beverly Torain. Gallagher was 10th in scoring (13.0) and Torain was fifth in rebounding (11.9).

Palatine's Marcy Mazzetta rounds out the 13-player team. This senior was eighth in scoring (13.4). She also made last year's team.

League stars were 'pioneers' in basketball

Girls' basketball had a quiet beginning four years ago in Illinois.

"I didn't know about it the first year basketball started," admitted Linda Webb, Conant's star center-forward. "The intramural bowling team had already talked me into going out."

Webb didn't miss much for the season was only four games long. Fremd's Heidi Giesler and Hoffman Estates' Clare Dowling played that short season. Little did these three know they were destined to be two-time all-conference stars.

"After my sophomore year I realized that it was going to grow," said Giesler. They played 10 games the second time around, 11 the third year and 16 this past season. Heidi's helped her team win all 41 en route to three Mid-Suburban League championships.

"This year was one of the best years I ever had in high school," said Webb, who led her team to its first MSL South Division title before losing to Fremd in the conference finale. "I'm so disgusted the season had to end. I wanted a double season. I've never felt such a team closeness."

Another thing that was frustrating to these athletes was the lack of a state championship. Dowling, who led the league in scoring, said she had a "left out" feeling about not having the chance to play in the tourney. (It will begin next year.)

"I hate it (missing the tourney), but there's nothing I can do about it," said Webb. "I'm just happy the girls from now on will have it."

"I'll always wonder whether we could have gone anywhere (in the tourney) or not," added Giesler.

Giesler, Fremd's only starting senior, was the heart of the Vikings' team. Few players on any level of basketball lead their team in both scoring and assists, but she did. She also got her share of rebounds although only a 5-foot-7 guard.

When Fremd played Hoffman Estates, she was used as the chaser on Dowling. Although she considered Clare one of the toughest opponents she faced, Giesler helped hold down the 5-8 high scorer in the first half as Fremd established control of the game.

Giesler will be playing softball this spring. She's also excelled in tennis, volleyball, track and field hockey. If the school had given varsity letters for every sport she played, she would have 16 by the time she graduates!

Fremd's all-round athlete will probably go to Western Illinois University. Giesler's hoping for a scholarship, but these are hard to get.

Dowling is also hoping. If Western doesn't come through with a scholarship, Williams Wood College (Mo.) might.

Clare will have played on 19 varsity teams when she handles the catching duties for Hoffman this spring. Few Illinois girls have ever participated on so many teams.

The same might be said of her 47-point performance against McHenry. One more basket and she would have surpassed the highest scoring game by a Herald area player (Hersey's Dave Coraine had 48).

"I couldn't remember the shots that I missed," said Dowling, who hit on 20 of 24 front the field. "I didn't feel like I was a hog. I passed the ball off a lot and set screens."

She easily led the MSL in scoring and had a 17-game scoring average of 23.9. Yet, she considers softball her best sport. "I've played it 14 years, starting in kindergarten playing with my brother and his friends," said Dowling.

Webb, who will be competing in track this spring, also participated in archery and bowling. Eleven varsity teams in all. She's planning to attend Illinois Central College in East Peoria.

After ably patrolling the area basketball courts the past three years, she's anxious to continue her favorite sport in college. Webb's also interested in becoming a police officer. Giesler and Dowling hope to be high school coaches.

As volunteer work for a school project, Linda's spent time teaching basketball at the park district. The little girls of today are eager to learn the sport, according to Webb. They're aggressive as well as anxious to prepare themselves for high school sports.

"When I was a little girl in sixth grade, I was shy," said Webb. "I can't wait to see what these girls will be like in high school and college."

"I wish our generation had basketball earlier. It really would have helped."

Heidi, Clare and Linda won't be playing in next year's state tournament. However, they can take pride in knowing that they were the sport's pioneers. They helped make future state tournaments possible.

Pirates boast improved mound staff and defense

(The following is the 6th in a series of major league baseball sizeups.)

BRADENTON, Fla. (UPI) — Easy-going Danny Murtaugh isn't worried one bit about his Pittsburgh Pirates' chances this year. As far as Murtaugh is concerned, any problems the Pirates might have are strictly in the minds of the sportswriters.

"They've been saying we're not a good defensive club," says Murtaugh. "Well, maybe we weren't last year but that was because we were breaking four men in at new positions. This year they've had a season under their belts and I'm sure we'll be okay."

"Let's not also forget that if we were so bad defensively, how come we've won five out of six division championships?"

The four men who were playing relatively new positions last year were Willie Stargell (leftfield to first base), Rennie Stennett (outfield to second base), Richie Zisk (rightfield to left) and Frank Taveras, who played more games at shortstop than in any previous season.

Willie Stargell

The Pirates' hitting image has also been magnified because they have not had three outstanding starters since the days of Vern Law, Bob Felling and Wilmer Mizell. However, 22-year old southpaw John Candelaria showed great promise upon being recalled late last year, and during the off-season, the Pirates landed 16-game winner Doc Medich from the New York Yankees. Along with Jerry Reuss (18-11) and Jim Rooker (13-11), they give the Bucs their best front four in years.

"Yeah," says Murtaugh "so now they're saying I've got problems in my bullpen because Ramon Hernandez (35) and Dave Giusti (36) are of advancing age. Well, the way I see it, age is nothing more than experience and I'll take experience in my bullpen any day."

STRENGTHS: In Stargell (.295, 22 homers, 90 RBIs), Dave Parker (.308, 25 HR, 10 RBI) Zisk (.290, 20 HR, 75 RBI), Al Oliver (.280, 18 HR, 84 RBI) and Manny Sanguillen (.328, 58 RBI), the Pirates still have one of the most awesome hitting teams in baseball. Medich and Candelaria added to vets Reuss, Rooker and Bruce Kison give Bucs a formidable five starting pitchers.

WEAKNESS: Regardless of Murtaugh's protests, Pirates are not a defensive team on a par with their closest NL East rivals, the Philadelphia Phillies. The bullpen is also suspect.

NEW FACES: Medich (16-14, 3.51 ERA), is the most important one, coming over from the Yankees in the Willie Randolph trade.

OUTLOOK: Unless the Phillies falter, Pirates will probably finish second in the division this time around.

Bill North Monday continued to play havoc with Chicago pitching, driving in four runs as the Oakland A's beat the Cubs 8-6. North had a single, double and triple in four times at bat. In Sunday's loss to the Cubs, he had a home run, double and single and drove in two runs in four trips to the plate.

North's big day helped give Chuck Tanner his first victory as the A's new manager. They had lost five regular exhibition games plus a "B" game this spring. Gene Tenace helped the A's cause with an inside the park home run over Rick Monday's head in center field. That offset the homer Monday got off Paul Lindblad.

Tigers no-hit Sox, sweep doubleheader

Ray Bare and Bill Laxton combined for the first no-hit game of the exhibition season Monday night, and Rusty Staub hit a game-winning home run as the Detroit Tigers completed a doubleheader sweep over the Chicago White Sox with a 1-0 victory. The Tigers won the opener 8-3 on a barrage of extra base hits.

Staub's home run led off the seventh inning of the night cap, providing the game's only score. The only member of the White Sox to reach base was Bob Oliver on a third-inning error by shortstop Tom Verzyer. Oliver was thrown out attempting to steal as the Tigers faced the minimum number of batters over the seven inning distance.

Staub's homer was his first of the spring, and came off Cecil Upshaw, who relieved Chicago starter Francisco Barrios in the fourth inning. Detroit managed only one other hit, a third inning single by Verzyer. Ben Oglivie provided the climatic blow in the first game with a bases loaded double in the fourth inning, snapping a 3-3 tie. Bob Molinaro added a solo home run.

Seaver still a Met... for now

The New York Mets admitted Monday the Dodgers were one of a half-dozen clubs that were contacted concerning a trade for Tom Seaver, but denied a deal for Los Angeles right-hander Don Sutton was imminent.

Trade conversations were initiated earlier this month when Seaver, a 31-year-old three time winner of the Cy Young Award, was quoted as saying he wanted a three-year contract in the neighborhood of $1 million.

The Mets countered with an offer of $800,000 to the ace right-hander who posted a 22-9 record last year. Sutton, who will be 31 on Friday, was 16-13 for the Dodgers last year. It was reported that the culmination of a trade rested with his approval.

M. Donald Grant, board chairman of the Mets, said "there is certainly no truth to any report that Seaver is leaving our club. Last week, someone traded Jerry Koosman to the Cincinnati Reds for us. That was a lot of nonsense also."

DeBusschere plots ABA's future

The American Basketball Assn. plans to have at least eight teams next season should a merger with the rival National Basketball Assn. not come about, commissioner Dave DeBusschere said Monday.

"I am optimistic at this time about the future of the ABA. The ABA is poised, ready to go ahead next year regardless of whether there is any accommodation or merger," DeBusschere told a gathering of local government leaders, owners of the San Antonio Spurs and reporters. "Somewhere down the line we've got to reach an accord with the NBA. I think the door is open to negotiations."

A court order which has prevented DeBusschere from talking to NBA commissioner Lawrence O'Brien about any merger may be lifted as early as next week, he said.

NFL teams begin expansion draft

Tampa Bay coach John McKay and Seattle mentor Jack Patera launched one of the most comprehensive studies in the embryonic lives of their expansion clubs Monday when they poured over the list of players made available to them in the National Football League allocation draft.

McKay, Patera and their staffs received the list of available talent at noon EST. They begin making their selections to NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle at 9 a.m. Tuesday. The picks, however, will not be revealed until noon Wednesday when the names of all 73 players chosen by the Buccaneers and Seahawks are announced.

Seattle won the right to pick first in a special draw last December. The clubs then select alternately until each expansion team has drafted 39 players from the 26 established NFL clubs. No veteran team will lose more than three players to the newcomers, who each paid $16 million for the privilege of joining the league.

Elk Grove to challenge for hockey invite crown

Eight of the top high school hockey clubs in Illinois will compete in an invitational tournament at the Jim Campbell Ice Skating Center in west suburban Westmont.

The tournament, which will start tonight, will involve the clubs from Barrington, Elk Grove, Glenbard South, Homewood-Flossmoor, Immaculate Conception, Oak Park, Proviso West and York.

The tourney will be double-elimination, with the four finalists playing a round-robin for the title. The championship game will be on Sunday, April 11.

All games will be played at the Campbell Ice Center, 400 E. Ogden Ave. in Westmont. At the conclusion of the tourney, a "most valuable player" and an all-star team will be named.

The tourney will open at 6:45 tonight with Barrington playing Glenbard South. Homewood-Flossmoor will play Proviso West at 8 p.m. and York will meet Elk Grove at 9:15 p.m.

The first round will be completed on Wednesday when Oak Park will play Immaculate Conception at 6:45 p.m.

"We feel that this tournament will be representative of the top high school hockey talent in the state," said Ice Center operator Jim Campbell of Elmhurst.

West Park Little League dates

The warmup date for the Des Plaines West Park Major Little League will be April 3 at 12:30 p.m. rather than the 9 a.m. time that was announced earlier.

Wrestling

St. Hubert

The St. Hubert School Wrestling team finished a surprising 7th in the Chicago Archdiocesan CYO Championship held at St. Patrick High School in Chicago. With over 400 participants, the inexperienced Knights were not expected to show well.

However, led by 8th grader Hanson's 2nd place, in the 105 lb. division, the team rallied. Rainey, also an 8th grader finished 4th. O'Connell, a 5th grader barely lost in quarterfinals. Stanton (8th grade), Barch (8th grade) and Peck (3rd grade) lost tough matches to the champion or 2nd place finishers.

With only four 8th grade students on the team, a good nucleus will be back next year with a year of experience. The team was coached by Roger Braun.

March is for flying kites

Kite flying can be a leisurely experience.

Dave Tonge

Kites and kids were flying high recently at Ross School, 700 N. Schoenbeck Rd., Prospect Heights, when everybody got a touch of spring fever and took advantage of the gusty winds of March. The fourth annual kite day was observed as each grade level spent part of the day fighting obstacles like trees and air pockets to send their paper kites and springtime spirits soaring to the sky.

Private homosexual acts are criminal: high court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled Monday that consenting adults can be criminally prosecuted for homosexual acts in their own homes.

The justices affirmed a three-judge lower court ruling that Virginia's sodomy law does not violate a homosexual's right to privacy. With one judge dissenting, the lower court held that homosexual activities do not have the same privacy shield as sex acts between married persons.

The Supreme Court acted in a brief order. Justices Thurgood Marshall, William J. Brennan Jr. and John Paul Stevens voted to set the case for oral argument, but four votes are needed for that action.

THE AMERICAN Civil Liberties Union said 37 states have laws similar to Virginia's, and it is estimated that from 5 million to 20 million persons in the United States are either active homosexuals or have practiced homosexuality.

Monday's was the latest in a long series of defeats in federal and state courts for gay activists seeking to establish constitutional rights to equal treatment.

The Virginia law provides a one-to three-year prison sentence for anal or oral intercourse, and it is used almost exclusively against homosexuals.

Two anonymous Virginia men asked the three-judge court to declare the law an unconstitutional invasion of privacy when applied to consenting adults.

JUDGE ALBERT V. BRYAN, in the Virginia ruling against them, said although the Supreme Court has recognized a right to privacy among married couples on sexual matters, the same principles do not apply to homosexuals.

Bryan also quoted the Bible's edict "thou shalt not lie with mankind as with womankind: it is an abomination."

Dave Tonge enjoys being a photographer. Because he isn't assigned a specific beat, he says he never becomes bored with his job.

Among his favorite assignments, Dave lists a very hot and sticky day in 1974 when he took pictures of President Ford in Chicago — it was Ford's first trip out of Washington after assuming the presidency. He is also proud of his pictures of a drifter along the North Western Railway tracks and his shots of an FAA inspector taken while flying over Chicago in an open cockpit biplane.

The recipient of many awards, Dave recently was named Photographer of the Year by the National Press Photographers Association. Dave's earlier awards include a monthly Herald Editorial Award of Excellence for June, 1975. Dave was also Photographer of the Year in Illinois clip judging in 1974 and 1975, and in 1974 he was honored by UPI of Illinois for taking the best sports photo.

The three awards are the first grand slam by a single film since 1934 when Clark Gable, Claudette Colbert and "It Happened One Night" ran off with the prizes.

Miss Grant won for her role in "Shampoo."

Burns won for his role in "The Sunshine Boys."

Mary Pickford who won the second Oscar ever awarded an actress back in 1928 for "Coquette" made a filmed appearance to accept a special Oscar from the Academy Board for her contribution to the films over the years.

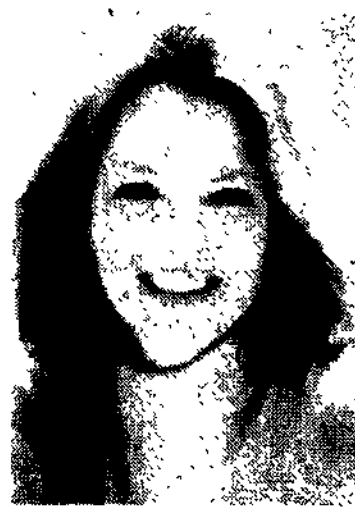

Nicholson, the heavy favorite to win an Oscar in his fifth try, was greeted by screaming fans who pelted him with roses when he arrived at the ceremonies at the Los Angeles Music Center.

Elizabeth Taylor, all cleavage and red flowing gown, attracted the most attention among the early arrivals who would participate in the nationally televised ceremonies.

Ann-Margret, a nominee for best actress, arrived in a white dress cut to the waist, rivaling Angie Dickinson in a see-through sequin dress which also made a great show of décolletage in (Continued on Page 4)

Court rules against city in MSD fight

by GERRY KERN

The Illinois Supreme Court has ruled against Des Plaines in the city's effort to block construction of the Metropolitan Sanitary District's proposed O'Hare Water Reclamation plant.

The high court Monday made public the unanimous decision which was reached Friday.

Justice Robert C. Underwood said the MSD is not bound to follow Des Plaines' health ordinances regarding sewage emission standards. The city's ordinances are more stringent than those normally followed by the MSD.

THE RULING removes a major obstacle to construction of the estimated $120 million sewage treatment plant to be located on 106 acres at the southwest corner of Oakton Street and Elmhurst Road, Des Plaines.

James Murray, attorney for the MSD, said the ruling means regional agencies like the MSD cannot be regulated by municipalities.

"It means Des Plaines has no power to regulate activities of the district," he said. He said Underwood wrote in the ruling that municipalities, like Des Plaines, cannot "frustrate" projects of regional agencies.

The ruling overturned an Oct. 30 decision by Circuit Court Judge Samuel B. Epstein that the local ordinances must be followed. The case bypassed the Illinois Appellate Court and went directly to the high court.

THE PLANT AND environmental regulations pertaining to it, however, are still being weighed in federal court. Des Plaines is challenging the construction standards for the plant and a ruling is expected within a month, Murray said.

Des Plaines Ald. Richard Ward, 8th, who has been the primary force behind city efforts to block construction of the plant, said the supreme court ruling puts more emphasis on the federal court case.

"It puts greater importance on the federal case regarding the multitude of errors and omissions in the federal environmental impact statement," he said.

Ward referred to a study indicating that some health factors have been overlooked in plant planning. Des Plaines is attempting to force the MSD to revise its plans.

DES PLAINE'S MAYOR Herbert H. Behrel said "There's really nothing we can do" now that the supreme court has ruled.

"Whenever the state supreme court rules, that's it," he said.

The proposed O'Hare Water Reclamation Plant will treat about 70 million gallons of sewage a day when completed, and also will relieve flooding problems in Des Plaines, Mount Prospect and Elk Grove Village.

Elk Grove Village officials have joined the MSD in federal court against Des Plaines, saying the new plant will relieve chronic flooding and sewer backups in the village.

VILLAGE MGR. Charles A. Willis Monday said "The judicial system has run its course and we are delighted." He said he hopes Des Plaines officials will work to help see the plant is built.

by JUDY JOBBITT

James Karabas was endorsed by a group of Des Plaines Dist. 62 parents Monday as a write-in candidate to run against incumbent Robert Birchfield in the April school board election.

About 25 parents met to organize a protest against budget cuts totaling $701,884 approved recently by the school board for the 1976-77 school year.

The group, which represented six of the district's 10 elementary schools, decided to place Karabas, 21 E. Millers Rd., for election April 10 to force the board to reconsider the cuts that include eliminating next year all nurses and guidance counselors and 17 classroom teachers.

DIST. 62 HAS two positions open for election in April. The caucus-endorsed incumbent Birchfield, and newcomer James Kosmond have filed. No other residents filed for the election.

The group, calling themselves the "Concerned Citizens for Quality Education," decided to place Karabas against Birchfield as a demonstration of their opposition to the recent budget cuts.

"The school board is a political animal," said George Platt, Forest School parent. "The best place to express our opposition is in the school board election. If nothing else, it would be an opposition vote."

"If we can elect one, we can elect two," said Carl Gully, Forest School parent. "In addition, we should put together a watchdog committee to keep monitoring what is going on. The problem is to find two qualified candidates."

CHUCK COOPER, South School parent, said he wants to see more parents become informed about the board's business throughout the year.

"It seems to me that the community at large doesn't get upset about something until it comes up like this,"

he said. "I would suggest we start some sort of campaign to get parents interested. You have to work on it year-round. It can't be a last-ditch effort."

Cooper said he is pessimistic about the success of a write-in campaign because of the community's apathy.

Eugene Filus, of West School, said a large number of parents are behind the opposition movement. "There are far more people behind this than you believe," he said.

The parents said they were upset about the budget cuts and school board's attitude toward the parents at the board meeting.

BERNADETTE INCLEDON, of Terrace School, said she was upset with the board reaction to parents protesting the March 15 meeting when more than 500 turned out in opposition to the cuts.

The board refused to let parents speak until they had approved cutting about 30 teachers and all the district's nurses for next year.

"I went under the impression that the cuts were going to be proposed," said Mrs. Incledon. "For what we were allowed to say, we might as well have stayed at home."

Karabas has five children and has lived in the district for 10 years. He said he is "prepared to give all the time that is needed. I can't do it alone. I need your help to go out and ring doorbells."

He said he understood the frustrations of the parents at the March 15 meeting because he has attended similar board meetings.

Karabas said if elected, he will be committed to voting in accordance with community wishes. "I have no allegiance to anyone," he said.

Woman named in gambling raid

Police have identified a woman arrested in a gambling raid on a Maine Township apartment Saturday as Marilyn S. Berkowitz, 39, 4418 N. Dee Rd.

Lt. Edward Berry, head of the Chicago Police Dept. gambling unit, said the woman was arrested Saturday afternoon in a coordinated raid by Chicago police, Illinois Bureau of Investigation agents and Cook County Sheriff's police.

She was taken into custody at an apartment, 8901 Robin Ln., for allegedly operating a sports wire betting service at the address.

Berry said police seized betting slips and odds records in the raid. The woman reportedly had taken $5,000 worth of wagers on the games and tried unsuccessfully to flush the records down a toilet when police entered with a search warrant.

A similar raid was conducted on an apartment, 2064 Windsor Dr., Arlington Heights, leading to the arrest of Sue Reid, 35, also for allegedly operating a betting service.

Both women were charged with syndicated gambling, keeping bets, keeping a gambling place and using a telephone for a bookmaking operation, Berry said.

Police said the women probably were working for a ringleader, who is being sought.

The women are free on bond, pending a May 14 court appearance in Branch 26 of circuit court.

by JUDIE BLACK

The phone kept ringing, but no one answered at the elderly woman's home in Rolling Meadows. The caller dialed several more times during the next hour, and still no one answered. The woman had high blood pressure and heart trouble. Could she be ill and unable to answer the phone?

Several miles away at Northwest Community Hospital's Telecare Office Peggy Williams of Palatine dialed another number, a neighbor who could be phoned in case of emergency. The neighbor knocked on the woman's door, and still no one answered.

Worried, Mrs. Williams called a third number, the woman's son. Yes, his mother was with them. They had gone to church together, and Mrs. Williams shouldn't worry if his mother doesn't call or answer the phone on Sunday.

But every other day, including weekends and holidays, Mrs. Williams and the other volunteers at Telecare expect to hear from the woman between 9 and 11 a.m. It might be a brief conversation of pleasantries or a 30-minute chat, but the call tells Telecare their clients are alive and well.

"THE PEOPLE WHO call us want to be independent, but they still want to be in touch with someone, too," Mrs. Williams, Telecare chairman, said. The service began six months ago, and now two men and 10 women call 255-2510 everyday to check in.

Many have families nearby but prefer not to bother their children daily. None are shut-ins, but most have some medical problem like diabetes, heart trouble or high (Continued in Section 3, Page 8)

Danes to aid in finding orphans home: Lindstrom

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Prospect Heights minister Paul Lindstrom Monday said Denmark has agreed to cooperate in finding adoptive parents, some of whom will be Americans, for 200 Vietnamese orphans there.

Lindstrom, national chairman of the Remember the Pueblo Committee, said the "official decision was a complete reversal of an earlier decision made by the Danish government regarding the children."

Lindstrom said he learned of the decision Monday through a confidential source in the Danish foreign ministry. The committee sent a representative to Copenhagen Monday to discuss with Danish officials the future of the orphans.

The committee has been working for three weeks to retrieve the children from the Danish government's care and bring them to the United States.

LINDSTROM HELD a press conference last week to outline the plight of the children, saying they were being "mistreated under Danish care."

Lindstrom said then that the Danish government refused to place the children, who range in age from 4 to 18, for adoption. The government planned to maintain custody of the children, educate them and possibly return them to their homeland, he said.

"We received word today out of Copenhagen that the Danish government does not plan to return the children to Vietnam, and that they will be eligible for adoption by American, Danish or other families throughout the free world," he said.

"We view this as another victory, and we believe the decision was brought about because we drew attention to the situation last week and placed pressure on the U.S. State Dept. with our own contacts there. We embarrassed the Danes into this decision," Lindstrom said.

The Remember the Pueblo Committee also contends it was successful in gaining the release of crewmen of the USS Pueblo, which was captured by the North Koreans in 1968.

"IF ANY OF THE children want to come to the United States, the committee has the financial means to bring them here and find families for them. We are ready to do this, if this is what the children want," he said.

The orphans have been in the custody of the Danish government since early last year, when they were evacuated from their native Saigon. The children were originally in the care of Danish journalist Henning Becker.

The children have demonstrated against their custodians in governmental welfare centers on the island of Livo off the Danish coast where they have been held, Lindstrom said. Several children also have been injured in recent brawls with Danish police, Lindstrom said.

"Now, the children do not need asylum and can come into this country if they want to. Chances are that some of them will come here to live before too long," he said.

number of delays in construction of the plant. Last week the EPA ruled the district must seek new bids for the project.

A low bid of $118 million submitted last fall by Blount Bros. Corp., Chicago, was found by the EPA to be lacking in engineering requirements. The district plans to advertise for new bids this week and award contracts in May. MSD officials do not know when construction on the project will begin.

Fliers OK after plane malfunctions

by DIANE MERMIGAS

A single-engine plane that took off from Pal-Waukee Airport Monday morning was forced to make an emergency landing at the Glenview Naval Air Station after its landing gear malfunctioned.

Pilot Karl L. Birkenstock, Barrington, and Marjorie Sundmacher, an FAA-certified flight instructor from Deerfield, were not injured in the emergency landing.

The plane, a Cessna 177, received only minor damage as it skidded about 60 feet to a halt on a foam-covered runway at the air base, Lt. Cmdr. Bill Ryan said.

CONTROL TOWER officials at Pal-Waukee Airport, Prospect Heights, directed the plane to Glenview when the pilot reported that the front nose landing gear of the plane could not be lowered for landing.

Pal-Waukee is not equipped with the runway foaming equipment, which minimizes a plane's chances of catching fire upon impact. Glenview does have the foaming procedure.

The plane, which is based at Pal-Waukee, took off at about 11 a.m. for an annual flight check. The pilot was flying the plane over Waukegan when he discovered the faulty landing gear, Ryan said.

"Mechanics on the ground at Pal-Waukee referred the plane to us because we have the ability to foam a runway, thereby minimizing the chances of the plane catching on fire upon landing without the proper landing gear," Ryan said.

The nose of the plane hit the runway upon landing, although the rest of the plane was held up by two other landing gear in the rear, he said.

"WE SPRAYED ABOUT 500 feet of the runway with about five inches of foam, and it worked. We had no problems and no fire," he said.

Ryan said the plane reportedly was in the air for 2½ hours before it finally landed. The plane was towed back to Pal-Waukee Airport late Monday for minor repairs.

A malfunctioning landing gear is not a common occurrence, and the last similar incident took place at Glenview more than a year ago, Ryan said.

Tag day April 9 to benefit children

The league provides money for about 50 children's agencies in the Chicago area, including community centers, settlement houses, nurseries and health care facilities.

Trustees to mull streets takeover

Wheeling trustees today will discuss a proposal that the village take over maintenance of streets in townhouse and condominium developments.

Trustees will meet at 8 p.m. at the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd., to consider a request from condominium and townhouse owners that the village take over the upkeep of privately-owned streets in planned developments.

Representatives of homeowners' associations met with the village board in December to discuss the proposal, charging they are not getting their fair share of the tax dollar.

Larry Meisnick, president of the Tahoe Village homeowners' group, said condominium owners are taxpayers, "but we're not getting the services every other citizen is getting, and we're not paying any less taxes."

WHEELING VILLAGE officials have said construction standards for private streets will have to be toughened if the village takes over maintenance. Many private streets are narrower than other roads in the village, creating problems for snow removal and other routine upkeep measures.

Trustee John C. Cole, chairman of the streets, public buildings and grounds committee, said the village will not be able to assume responsibility for the private streets "without an assessment."

"Assuming the streets are in perfect condition, we'll still have routine maintenance costs. We also have the problems that some of the streets are so narrow. We'll have to start enforcing the parking requirements," he said.

Cole said owners of condominium apartments and townhouses are beginning to realize that "three or four or five years down the line, they are going to be nailed with some large repair bills."

Village officials have asked the homeowners' association to submit ideas on the problems for study by the board of trustees.

Taxi cab license law up for review

A recommendation to revise a Wheeling ordinance governing the number of taxicabs in Wheeling will be discussed tonight by the village board.

The board will meet at 8:30 p.m. at the municipal building, 255 W. Dundee Rd., to discuss a request from the American Taxi Co., Glenview, for three village taxi licenses. Evelyn Diens, village clerk, recommended a review of the current ordinance, because the village's five taxi licenses are now held by one firm, the Wheeling Village Cab Co.

The taxi licenses are used to regulate cab companies operating in the village. The ordinance sets requirements for driver training and vehicle safety. The fee is $30, plus $20 per vehicle.

Mrs. Diens said the village taxi licenses were created in 1968 and "I feel the ordinance is outdated now." She said the village ordinance has not kept pace with changes in the state laws on taxicab operation.

JAMES BECK, a co-owner of American Taxi, said his company would like to operate three cabs on a full-time basis in the village. His company currently operates a fleet of 15 taxis with licenses in Wilmette, Glenview and Northbrook.

In a letter to village officials, Beck said his company thinks service to Wheeling residents would be improved if licenses were issued to his company, as "there is no competition from any other taxi company" currently.

To Prospect Heights City Council

PHIA to offer research reports

Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. officials Monday night voted to present all recommendations made by its nine research committees to the city council after it is elected May 22.

The officials qualified their decision, however, by requiring all committee reports to follow a stringent format and be fully documented.

Association officials, during a special meeting at St. Alphonsus School, Prospect Heights, said they would review all reports and endorse those that reflected PHIA recommendations.

"However, all the committee reports will be submitted to the city council for its consideration," said Richard E. Wolf, PHIA president and mayoral candidate.

WOLF SAID the PHIA was "clarifying" its policy on the recommendations because of controversy that arose last week about how the reports would be presented to the council.

The PHIA has formed nine committees to research areas like police protection and road maintenance contracts, zoning and necessary ordinances.

Several candidates in the May city election who are not affiliated with the PHIA comprise one of the committees that is studying alternatives to PHIA proposals.

Those candidates last week asked for assurances that their committee report would not be altered or overshadowed by PHIA recommendations.

"If the report is submitted in the format we have approved, we assure you it will go to the council," Wolf told an audience of about 15 residents, which included several city council candidates.

THE PHIA format calls for documents, a statement of purpose and recommendations in a "businesslike form" from each committee.

Jack E. Gilligan, coordinator of the PHIA committee and also a mayoral candidate, argued against the need for the report guidelines.

"This is not just a matter of solving a public relations problem. You're directing these committees to do what I thought they already had the authority to do when they were established," he said.

Gilligan said the committee recommendations needed to be "integrated, directing the council to what it must consider first out of necessity."

PHIA officials said the committee reports will be presented to the city fathers at the city council's second meeting, early in June.

Danes to aid in finding orphans home: Lindstrom

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Prospect Heights minister Paul Lindstrom Monday said Denmark has agreed to cooperate in finding adoptive parents, some of whom will be Americans, for 200 Vietnamese orphans there.

Lindstrom, national chairman of the Remember the Pueblo Committee, said the "official decision was a complete reversal of an earlier decision made by the Danish government regarding the children."

Lindstrom said he learned of the decision Monday through a confidential source in the Danish foreign ministry. The committee sent a representative to Copenhagen Monday to discuss with Danish officials the future of the orphans.

The committee has been working for three weeks to retrieve the children from the Danish government's care and bring them to the United States.

LINDSTROM HELD a press conference last week to outline the plight of the children, saying they were being "mistreated under Danish care."

Lindstrom said then that the Danish government refused to place the children, who range in age from 4 to 19, for adoption. The government planned to maintain custody of the children, educate them and possibly return them to their homeland, he said.

"We received word today out of Copenhagen that the Danish government does not plan to return the children to Vietnam, and that they will be eligible for adoption by American, Danish or other families throughout the free world," he said.

"We view this as another victory, and we believe the decision was brought about because we drew attention to the situation last week and placed pressure on the U.S. State Dept. with our own contacts there. We embarrassed the Danes into this decision," Lindstrom said.

The Remember the Pueblo Committee also contends it was successful in gaining the release of crewmen of the USS Pueblo, which was captured by the North Koreans in 1968.

"IF ANY OF THE children want to come to the United States, the committee has the financial means to bring them here and find families for them. We are ready to do this, if this is what the children want," he said.

The orphans have been in the custody of the Danish government since early last year, when they were evacuated from their native Saigon. The children were originally in the care of Danish journalist Henning Becker.

The children have demonstrated against their custodians in governmental welfare centers on the island of Livo off the Danish coast where they have been held, Lindstrom said. Several children also have been injured in recent brawls with Danish police, Lindstrom said.

"Now, the children do not need asylum and can come into this country if they want to. Chances are that some of them will come here to live before too long," he said.

EXTRA POUNDS? June Newren, instructor of a hypnotism class at Forest Hospital, says weight loss can be accomplished through hypnosis. Ms. Newren ought to know — she's lost weight herself through the program, which is being offered by the Buffalo Grove Park District. The program was initiated by Dr. Monte Meldman, director of research at Forest Hospital.

Doctor offers hypnosis to help plump folks reduce

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

Hypnotism: the word usually elicits an image of darkened rooms, flickering candles, and glassy-eyed victims doing crazy things they'll hate themselves for in the morning.

But Dr. Monte Meldman and the Buffalo Grove Park District are substituting Emmerich Park for the darkened room in an attempt to help overweight residents take off that extra poundage through hypnosis.

In a new five-week program scheduled to start this week, Dr. Meldman of Forest Hospital, Des Plaines, and his assistant, June Newren, will use hypnosis to help people lose up to 15 or 20 pounds a week.

MS. NEWREN HAS been conducting a weight loss clinic at Forest Hospital for two years, and she says hypnosis is a "great way" to help people shed pounds without resorting to pills and tears.

"We do get people who have tried everything else and are desperate," Ms. Newren says. "But we just try to help people tune in to their own feelings and motives. The patient knows more about himself than anyone else, and we go from there."

The weight loss program starts with a preliminary test to determine if a candidate is a good hypnotic subject, says Dr. Meldman, psychiatrist and director of research at Forest Hospital. In addition to tests such as the Harvard scale of hypnotic susceptibility, good hypnotic subjects often can be picked out by observing eye movements, he adds.

Once "hypnotizable" subjects are identified, the hypnotist works on a "patter" — a series of words that are repeated to induce a trance. When a person goes into a hypnotic trance, a suggestion such as "I will not eat chocolate bars" made during the trance, will be acted out when the trance is over, Dr. Meldman says.

THE HYPNOTISM program at Forest Hospital has involved at least 100 patients, and approximately 60 percent have lost weight through hypnosis. The park district program will

Pupils will have to pass a test

The weight loss through hypnosis clinic will begin with a hypnotic susceptibility test Wednesday at 8 p.m. at Emmerich Park, 150 Raupp Blvd.

The first session will cost $20, and participants will know by the end of the evening if they are acceptable for the program. The actual sessions will begin April 7 and continue for five weeks, with a fee of $35 for the five sessions.

Participants may pay in advance for the testing session by calling the park district office, 537-0356.

be the first time the program has been conducted outside a clinical setting, and Dr. Meldman says he has "no idea" how Buffalo Grove residents will react.

"This is pretty much an experimental thing," he says. "What we're doing is hypnotherapy — it's fun, but it's not a game. Staged hypnosis is unethical, and this is medically based."

Dr. Meldman says he hopes to work up to individual hypnosis — a process that is more difficult than group hypnosis, but one which can be practiced at any time of the day once the subject has trained him or herself to repeat the "patter."

Weight loss through hypnosis is first on Dr. Meldman's agenda for the Buffalo Grove Park District, but he says he also hopes to start other "preventive medicine" programs in Buffalo Grove.

A MARRIAGE AND family clinic, for example, would help residents deal with what Dr. Meldman calls the "cultural shock" of moving into a fast-paced suburban lifestyle before these

Dist. 125's Banser resigns under fire

The resignation of Supt. Harold Banser was accepted by the High School Dist. 125 Board of Education over shouts of protest from members of the audience attending Monday's board meeting.

More than 100 persons, including about 50 students from Stevenson High School, Prairie View, jammed the room where the board met, and several persons demanded to speak in Banser's behalf. Their request was denied by Board Pres. Edward Smith.

Smith said the audience was given an opportunity to speak at the March 15 board meeting when Banser's contract first came to the board. He said Monday's meeting was called specifically for a closed session to consider renewal of the superintendent's contract.

FOLLOWING A half-hour closed session the board accepted Banser's resignation by a 4-to-1 vote, with board members Carole Boltz, Arne Carlsson, Gloria Helke and Edward Smith voting yes and board member Frank Clayton voting no.

The vote triggered shouts of "no" from the audience. One teen-age girl burst into tears and J. D. McCartney, head of Stevenson's guidance department, shouted his intention to resign.

Banser, and other members of Stevenson's administration, have been criticized by some board members who believe the school's educational program should be strengthened. Banser's supporters have charged that board member Carole Boltz led the criticism.

Members of the audience demanded to know the charges against Banser but Smith said there were no charges. They demanded to hear explanations from Mrs. Boltz and Carlsson, but the board members remained silent. "We want Mrs. Boltz impeached," shouted a student.

"THE BOARD DOES understand the feelings of the group tonight," said Smith. He said "discussions and negotiations" between Banser and the board were going on for "a significant length of time." It was "clear that a majority of the board was ruling and this negotiation was a necessity," he said.

Banser said he resigned because of "an irrevocable and impossible position in the relationship between the board and myself, and in the best interest of the district I felt it was best to take this action."

"We don't want you to resign Mr. Banser," shouted students. A group of students circulated a petition in the school Monday supporting Banser and obtained about 250 signatures. A student asked the board whether the feelings of students counted in the board's decision. "If we don't count, why should we come to school anymore?" he challenged.

Banser came to the district 17 years ago and has been superintendent for the past 14 years. His resignation as superintendent and as a tenured teacher in the district takes effect June 30 when his contract expires.

FOLLOWING ADJOURNMENT of the meeting McCartney reaffirmed his intention to resign. He said he will take the matter to his attorney and to the Illinois Education Assn. "Anytime that Carole Boltz can run

Pro-Dist. 125 candidates backed

A group of residents in High School Dist. 125 has formed a committee to back pro-administration candidates for the board of education in school elections April 10.

Francis L. Wolowic, chairman of the "Save Our Stevenson" committee, filed as a candidate for the Stevenson High School Board of Education, but withdrew his candidacy to campaign for two school board candidates from Buffalo Grove, incumbent Edward Smith and newcomer Conrad Thorne.

THE COMMITTEE is a group of citizens "who are concerned about our high school and who want to elect candidates to the board who are positive thinking and are willing to work with the administration and not against them," said Wolowic. He said the committee does not believe the administration "should be taking the abuse they have been taking."

this school and run this community let's give it to them and see what they have," said McCartney. "The community justly deserves Carole Boltz."

"I will not work in this school," said McCartney, "unless the community gets up and elects new people to the board."

Ronald Warwick, assistant superintendent in Buffalo Grove-Long Grove Dist. 96, has written to the Illinois School Board Assn., calling for an investigation into the behavior of the Wolowic said he supports the two Buffalo Grove candidates because they "have the same thinking that I do, that Stevenson has quality administration."

Wolowic said he stepped out of the race so the vote would not be split in the district.

With only four candidates running for the two seats open on the board, the Buffalo Grove candidates will have a better chance of winning, he said.

Wolowic said the other candidates, Brenda Weis and Larry Managh of Lincolnshire, are being backed by Dist. 125 Board Member Carole Boltz, who has been critical of the administration.

Last week Mrs. Boltz denied she is backing any candidates in April 10 school board elections.

Dist. 125 board. Warwick stressed that he is acting only as a resident of Dist. 125 and not as an administrator of the elementary district.

"I feel a grave injustice is being done to our school because of this misbehavior of specific board members. The morale of the students, staff and community is at stake," Warwick wrote. "Our community, as well as the education of our children, will suffer if this kind of behavior is allowed or tolerated."

Development cooperation urged

Closer cooperation between the park district, school district and village staff concerning new development in Buffalo Grove was urged at a workshop meeting of the village board Monday.

School Districts 21, 96 and 102, and the Buffalo Grove Park District agreed to meet with the plan commission at a preliminary workshop meeting whenever a developer brings plans into the village.

Under current village procedure, which was defined and reviewed at the meeting, a development is referred to the plan commission before final action by the village board. The developer also meets with the school districts and the park district before the plan commission's public hearing.

VILLAGE PRES. Edward Favish said both village and the developer need early input from the school and park district "to avoid the last-minute bargaining" that has occurred when plans are presented to the village board.

Workshop participants also discussed a current land donation resolution, which states that a developer must either donate a percentage of land or pay a flat fee for land slated for school or park use.

The resolution has been a stumbling block because it does not include a concrete definition of "usable" for park or school purposes.

In an opinion sent to the village board, Village Atty. Richard Raysa said, "The whole of the land offered (by developers) must be suitable for park or school purposes." He added at the meeting that "suitability of land can cover a wide range — it doesn't mean that every bit of land has to be buildable."

JOSEPH SETTANNI, park board president, said he favors a strong stand on donations, adding, "I realize the developer has a profit motive, but we must defend the people who will be moving in."

Participants in the workshop also agreed to hold a special meeting to determine the future of several sites now maintained by the village as open space.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said he wants to investigate the possibility of the park district taking over the land.

Clerk proposes voting booth reform

A plan to have the number of Democratic and Republican voting booths in primary elections correspond to the voters' party preference has been proposed by Lake County Clerk Grace Mary Stern.

Some voters had to wait as long as two hours to vote in the March 16 primary because turnout for one party was unexpectedly heavy, Mrs. Stern said. Because not enough voting booths were provided for that party, people had to wait, she said.

"The problem in a primary is trying to determine the turnout. How big will it be? Where will it be heavily Republican and where heavily Democratic?" Mrs. Stern said.

THE BALLOT booklet in the punch card voting machines used in Lake County is composed of a page assembly that is lock-sealed into the vote recorder. Half the assemblies used March 16 were Republican and the other half Democratic.

The clerk's office has four deputy clerks traveling the county during an election to remedy trouble spots, such as broken styluses or torn ballots stuck in the machine.

"At the next primary," Mrs. Stern said, "if a precinct begins to go unexpectedly strong for one party, we shall be able to replace the page assembly in one or two of the other party's machines." The deputy clerks would be able to switch a Republican booth to a Democratic booth or vice versa, depending on demand.

"I think we have to try something; we don't want people leaving in disgust before they get a chance to vote," Mrs. Stern said.

He says he wants to get away from the traditional medical setting and into communities, and a park district is "perfect" for reaching people before they become seriously ill.

"For the young executive on his way up the corporate ladder, moving from a $36,000 home in Denver to a similar house here for $90,000 can present some difficulties," he says. "The big city can cause some big problems, and a lot of people can't handle it."

For the time being, however, Dr. Meldman and Ms. Newren will be concentrating on erasing that glassy-eyed image and showing residents how they can shed pounds by helping themselves via hypnosis.

Brisk captures first in Pinewood Derby

John Brisk captured first, Todd Rhodes took second, and Frank Polard placed third in the Boy Scout Pack 39 pinewood derby held earlier this month at Booth Tarkington School, Wheeling.

Fire chief tells needs at budget meet

Elk Grove Fire Chief John Henrici said Monday night that the basic needs for a Meacham Road fire station would be to buy one new engine and hire six more men.

Henrici, speaking at the first of the village board's budget sessions, said the engine should be ordered during the upcoming fiscal year, which starts May 1, but the men will not have to be hired until 1977-78.

Plans for the Meacham Road fire station which would service all of the village west of Ill. Rte. 53, are completed. Construction bids will be sought next, once the village board gives the go ahead.

HENRICI SAID the new engine, a pumper, would cost about $75,000 with another $6,000 needed to equip it. However, Henrici proposed the village sell its snorkel truck to help pay for the new engine. He said the snorkel is only used about twice a year.

"For us, right now, it is a luxury," Henrici said of the 8-year-old snorkel. "We're probably going to leave it sit and deteriorate."

The snorkel can be outperformed in most cases by the department's aerial ladder, Henrici said.

The original cost of the snorkel was $65,000. Henrici said he has been offered $60,000 for the snorkel by the Forest View Fire Dept. and he added that the Barrington Fire Dept. also was interested in buying the snorkel.

HENRICI ALSO is asking the board to approve a deputy chief's position, which would be appointive. He said it would only cost some $4,000 additional because someone in the department would be promoted and new personnel would not have to be added.

The deputy chief would take control at a fire scene, Henrici said. "Somebody has to man that one position for the safety of our people," he said, adding that it helps cut down confusion at a fire scene.

Henrici also is proposing 20 on-street box fire alarms to be put in the village, mostly at signalled intersections, at a cost of about $80,000. He said the plan had been proposed in previous years, but was not funded by the village board.

The fire alarms would be connected to the main fire station by radio, enabling the dispatcher to talk with the person reporting a fire, and the department feels this may cut down on any expected false alarms.

"It is for the off-hour or weekend type thing when you don't have the capability of reaching a telephone," Henrici said. He said it would mostly assist the industrial areas for fire reporting, but could also be used to report traffic accidents with injuries.

Henrici said both the department's fire prevention and pre-fire planning programs would continue, but with on-duty rather than overtime personnel.

Poster contest for Arbor Day

Elementary school children from kindergarten through fifth grade who live within the Elk Grove Park District boundaries are eligible to enter the park district's Arbor Day poster contest.

The contest ends April 12. Rules are available at village schools and the park office, 499 Bluesterfield Rd. The contest winner will receive a Schwinn Sting Ray bicycle at the park district's Arbor Day tree planting ceremony at 2 p.m. April 25 at J. Sterling Morton Park on Brantwood Avenue.

SEPARATING FRUITFLIES for Denise Chapman is just part of a day's work in the creative science class offered at Lively Junior

Kids queue up for 'creative class'

by JUDY JOBBITT

Youngsters at Lively Junior High School actually look on two hours a day of science, math, social studies or writing as a privilege.

They line up, petition and push to get the opportunity to take an additional course in the basics beyond the regular class.

The students are enrolled in the "creative" courses that are electives in each of the basic subjects at the school. They can sign up for creative science, math, social studies or writing, which gives them the opportunity to do different work than regular classes.

Students are recommended for the classes by their regular teachers. Most of them either have a special talent in the particular subject or show a special interest that can't be satisfied in a regular class.

"IT'S FOR THE youngsters who really want to do it because they have to give out extra for it," said Linda Salmen, creative writing teacher. Youngsters in her class are encouraged to use their imagination and write to their heart's content.

The writing class centers on poetry and fiction writing. She said poetry is "best for students at this age because they have to center in on the words and be concise."

The class works on writing, critiquing what they have written and putting together a literary magazine, "Westoria," of their best work.

"WE ALSO BUILD egos. Some of the students are shy because they're writers, not speakers," she said. Through the writing and critiquing, friendships also are formed, because students find others who share their interests, she said.

The social studies group has students with a variety of talents, from speakers to artists. These talents have been mixed together to produce a skit on the Liberty Bell that is being presented to elementary schools.

The students also are painting a wall mural in the school of famous events in the United States history.

THE MATH CLASS goes beyond teaching the basic skills, said Diana Dragel. "We hassle in class. We pick apart arguments to understand what's going on."

She said one two-day argument was on the concept of counting. They discussed what counting is and how people learn to count. She said she centers in on the arguments because "that's what you remember most from math."

The science course has centered on individual experiments. Students selected their own topic at the beginning of the year and have developed the project in class with the help of Lyle Hampton, science teacher. He said

"these are the kids who are really into science."

HE WAS ABLE to have the experiment set-up because only 12 stu-

by JUDIE BLACK

The phone kept ringing, but no one answered at the elderly woman's home in Rolling Meadows. The caller dialed several more times during the next hour, and still no one answered. The woman had high blood pressure and heart trouble. Could she be ill and unable to answer the phone?

Several miles away at Northwest Community Hospital's Telecare Office Peggy Williams of Palatine dialed another number, a neighbor who could be phoned in case of emergency. The neighbor knocked on the woman's door, and still no one answered.

Worried, Mrs. Williams called a third number, the woman's son. Yes, his mother was with them. They had gone to church together, and Mrs. Williams shouldn't worry if his mother doesn't call or answer the phone on Sunday.

But every other day, including weekends and holidays, Mrs. Williams and the other volunteers at Telecare expect to hear from the woman between 9 and 11 a.m. It might be a brief conversation of pleasantries or a 30-minute chat, but the call tells Telecare their clients are alive and well.

"THE PEOPLE WHO call us want to be independent, but they still want to be in touch with someone too," Mrs. Williams, Telecare chairman, said. The service began six months ago, and now two men and 10 women call 255-2510 everyday to check in.

Many have families nearby but prefer not to bother their children daily. None are shut-ins, but most have some medical problem like diabetes, heart trouble or high

High court allows water plant; Des Plaines loses

by GERRY KERN

The Illinois Supreme Court has ruled against Des Plaines in the city's effort to block construction of the Metropolitan Sanitary District's proposed O'Hare Water Reclamation plant.

The high court Monday made public the unanimous decision which was reached Friday.

Justice Robert C. Underwood said the MSD is not bound to follow Des Plaines' health ordinances regarding sewage emission standards. The city's ordinances are more stringent than those normally followed by the MSD.

THE RULING removes a major obstacle to construction of the estimated $120 million sewage treatment plant to be located on 106 acres at the southwest corner of Oakton Street and Elmhurst Road, Des Plaines.

James Murray, attorney for the MSD, said the ruling means regional agencies like the MSD cannot be regulated by municipalities.

"It means Des Plaines has no power to regulate activities of the district," he said. He said Underwood wrote in the ruling that municipalities, like Des Plaines, cannot "frustrate" projects of regional agencies.

The ruling overturned an Oct. 30 de-

Of unincorporated property

Village to fight industry rezone

Elk Grove Village will oppose light industry rezoning of property on Oakton Street in unincorporated Elk Grove Township.

The village's official objection to George and John Gullo's rezoning request will require a two-thirds vote instead of a simple majority vote of the Cook County Board to rezone the property.

The Elk Grove Village board has passed a resolution opposing the Gullos' current efforts to obtain light industrial zoning from the county for the property, which is on the north side of Oakton Street, about 3,000 feet west of Higgins Road.

ings on the property.

The village wants the property to be annexed if it is developed. It also is concerned that four wells proposed for the site might interfere with the operation of two village-owned deep wells in the area. If the property is brought in the village, wells would not be needed because it would be tied into the village water system.

No new hearing or deliberation date has been set by the county zoning board of appeals on the development. The Gullos' attorney, Buster Koczur, has been given until Friday to change the rezoning request to a planned unit development, which would require a specific building plan to be followed.

Village OKs Shadywood pump buy

The Shadywood Lane area lift station will be purchased from W. W. Watson Co. and should be in operation within seven to eight weeks.

The Elk Grove Village engineering department has approved the Watson lift station, which was an alternate from that sought by the village, said Peter Kaleta, assistant village engineer.

The lift station will cost $31,307 and it will be installed at Oakton Street and Shadywood Lane. It will be used to pump sewage out of the Shadywood Lane area into the Metropolitan Sanitary District sewer along Elmhurst

Some 22 homes in the area have been plagued by sewer backups in times of heavy rainfall. Officials hope the lift station will stop the backup, at least until the MSD O'Hare sewage treatment plant is built and provides greater relief.

If the Watson lift station had been rejected, it would have taken an estimated two weeks longer to get the lift station delivered.

Forest View gets OK to file late tax levy

The Forest View Fire Protection District will be able to file its tax levy for 1977 fire protection late, said Elk Grove Township officials.

The district, which covers the unincorporated Branigan Forest View subdivision, could not file a tax levy last fall because two of the three board seats were vacant. A minimum of two officials have to sign the levy ordinance.

The Elk Grove Township Board Thursday appointed three trustees for the district. Eugene Chovanec, 618 Thorndale Ave., was reappointed to a two-year term as president. Charles Steiger, 570 Woodview Ave., was named secretary for one year and Dorine Kehoe, 326 Thorndale Ave., was named treasurer for three years.

The 90-acre subdivision is bounded by Landmeier and Tonne roads, Ridge Avenue and Laurel Street, and includes 121 homes. Fire protection is purchased from Elk Grove Village.

Creative class finds no shortage of kids

dents are enrolled, which lets him give them the kind of individual attention they need.

Because several experiments deal with genetics, he has started a special unit on that topic, which goes into more depth than students receive in the regular science courses.

Through the classes, the teachers say students who need that extra encouragement or advanced study can get it through the extra dose each day.

The success of the courses also is measured by the number of students who want to get in, they say. Students even are willing to turn their class schedule upside down to keep themselves in those classes.

cision by Circuit Court Judge Samuel B. Epstein that the local ordinances must be followed. The case bypassed the Illinois Appellate Court and went directly to the high court.

THE PLANT AND environmental regulations pertaining to it, however, are still being weighed in federal court. Des Plaines is challenging the construction standards for the plant and a ruling is expected within a month, Murray said.

Des Plaines Ald. Richard Ward, 8th, who has been the primary force behind city efforts to block construction of the plant, said the supreme court ruling puts more emphasis on the federal court case.

"It puts greater importance on the federal case regarding the multitude of errors and omissions in the federal environmental impact statement," he said.

Ward referred to a study indicating that some health factors have been overlooked in plant planning. Des Plaines is attempting to force the MSD to revise its plans.

DES PLAINES MAYOR Herbert H. Behrel said "There's really nothing we can do" now that the supreme court has ruled.

"Whenever the state supreme court rules, that's it," he said.

The proposed O'Hare Water Reclamation Plant will treat about 70 million gallons of sewage a day when completed, and also will relieve flooding problems in Des Plaines, Mount Prospect and Elk Grove Village.

Elk Grove Village officials have joined the MSD in federal court against Des Plaines, saying the new plant will relieve chronic flooding and sewer backups in the village.

VILLAGE MGR. Charles A. Willis Monday said "The judicial system has run its course and we are delighted." He said he hopes Des Plaines officials will work to help see the plant is built.

The MSD has been plagued with a number of delays in construction of the plant. Last week the EPA ruled the district must seek new bids for the project.

A low bid of $118 million submitted last fall by Blount Bros. Corp., Chicago, was found by the EPA to be lacking in engineering requirements. The district plans to advertise for new bids this week and award contracts in May. MSD officials do not know when construction on the project will begin.

The three holdups, all of which took place at the Woodfield Shopping Center, netted the robbers more than $9,400 in cash.

Sunday night, the Woodfield Theatre was robbed of $942 in cash by a gunman who entered the manager's office, pulled a gun and demanded money be removed from the safe. The bandit then bound and taped the manager's hands and fled. Police said the gunman was last seen running west-bound from the theater through a parking lot.

The bandit was said to be wearing a Sherlock Holmes-style hat and a plaid jacket, and spoke with an English accent. He appeared to be about 35 years old and had a ruddy complexion, police said.

IRONICALLY, the film "Sherlock Holmes' Smarter Brother" was playing at the theater.

About 1:45 a.m. Saturday, an assistant manager of Farrell's Ice Cream Parlor, was robbed of $2,322 in store receipts by two men who accosted him as he was leaving work.

Police said the men, wielding a knife, club and possibly a pistol, forced the man, Raymond Eaves, 29, into his car, drove around the center parking lot then ordered him back into the store to open a safe. They then tied him up, locked him in a back room of the store and fled with the money.

Eaves forced his way out of the room a short time later and called police.

BOTH MEN were described as about 6 feet tall, one with broad shoulders and dirty blond hair, wearing a black jacket and light-colored trousers. He appeared to weigh 150 to 180 pounds, police said. The other was slender, 150 to 160 pounds, with an Afro-style hair style. Both were said to be between 19 and 24 years old.

The other robbery occurred at the Woodfield Bank in the shopping center shortly before 7 p.m. Saturday. Two men ordered managers of the Merry-Go-Round, a women's clothing store, to hand over money they were about to drop in the bank's night depository.

They robbed the managers, William Doggett Jr., and Charles Shultz of $3,063 in cash and checks, forced them into a nearby elevator, then fled.

THE BANDITS were described as in their mid-20s.

Wheeling police were investigating an armed holdup that happened late Sunday in the suburb at the National Food Store, Ill. Rte. 83 and Dundee Rd.

Two men, both armed with revolvers, entered the store at closing time, tied up four employees and helped themselves to $1,000 cash, police said.

Airplane malfunctions; aviators OK

by DIANE MERMIGAS

A single-engine plane that took off from Pal-Waukee Airport Monday morning was forced to make an emergency landing at the Glenview Naval Air Station after its landing gear malfunctioned.

Pilot Karl L. Birkenstock, Barrington, and Marjorie Sundmacher, an FAA-certified flight instructor from Deerfield, were not injured in the emergency landing.

The plane, a Cessna 177, received only minor damage as it skidded about 60 feet to a halt on a foam-covered runway at the air base, Lt. Cmdr. Bill Ryan said.

CONTROL TOWER officials at Pal-Waukee Airport, Prospect Heights, directed the plane to Glenview when the pilot reported that the front nose landing gear of the plane could not be lowered for landing.

Pal-Waukee is not equipped with the runway foam equipment, which minimizes a plane's chances of catching fire upon impact. Glenview does have the foam procedure.

The plane, which is based at Pal-Waukee, took off at about 11 a.m. for an annual flight check. The pilot was flying the plane over Waukegan when he discovered the faulty landing gear, Ryan said.

"Mechanics on the ground at Pal-Waukee referred the plane to us because we have the ability to foam a runway, thereby minimizing the chances of the plane catching on fire upon landing without the proper landing gear," Ryan said.

The nose of the plane hit the runway upon landing, although the rest of the plane was held up by two other landing gear in the rear, he said.

"WE SPRAYED ABOUT 500 feet of the runway with about five inches of foam, and it worked. We had no problems and no fire," he said.

Ryan said the plane reportedly was in the air for 2½ hours before it finally landed. The plane was towed back to Pal-Waukee Airport late Monday for minor repairs.

A malfunctioning landing gear is not a common occurrence, and the last similar incident took place at Glenview more than a year ago, Ryan said.

Budget cuts on Dist. 54 agenda

Budget cuts will be discussed at the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education committee meeting today at 8 p.m.

The meeting, which will be held at Keller Junior High School, 820 Bode Rd., Schaumburg, was scheduled last week after Supt. Wayne Schaible said he had been warned by Illinois School Supt. Joseph Cronin that school districts probably will receive only 85 to 90 per cent of their expected aid to education from the state.

Schaible said the loss of state aid could cost the district between $1.2 and $2 million, which could place the district in a deficit situation because the projected surplus for next year is $1.6 million. The administration had not expected a deficit until 1977-78 when it was estimated to be $1.3 million in the red.

Board members are expected to discuss what items can be cut to maintain a balanced budget. The administration's proposed list of cuts include learning resource center teachers, after-school activities at junior high schools and the lunch program.

The board may also discuss holding a referendum to increase funds. A tax increase referendum was defeated in February. Four of five board members at a committee meeting last week said they were in favor of holding a referendum this year.

New chamber opens office

Although it will not begin formally functioning until April 8, the new Northwest Suburban Assn. of Commerce and Industry has already established its first goal by opening an office in the Lincoln Federal Savings and Loan Bldg., 1400 N. Gannon Dr., Hoffman Estates.

The association is being created by the merger of the Schaumburg Assn. of Commerce and Industry with the Hoffman Estates Chamber of Commerce.

Gertrude Kosik, association secretary, can be reached at 882-7110 to provide information during office hours from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

RETIRED SCHAUMBURG Pres. Robert O. Atcher appeared genuinely shocked at a surprise testimonial held Saturday in his honor. But Atcher quickly recovered and displayed particular caution in avoiding preferential treatment in handing out autographs as evidenced by his mother standing in line along with a host of other well-wishers.

The event attracted a crowd of 600 persons including Chicago radio and television personalities Fahey Flynn and Jim Conway.

Conway, incidentally, served as best man when Atcher and his gracious Maggie were married more than 25 years ago.

THE BURNING question in Schaumburg this week is — Can Wizzo the Wizard really replace Nick Tselos as the host with the most at The Lancer Steak House restaurant?

Tselos, who recently relinquished his partnership in the restaurant to TV magician Marshall Brodien, has become a familiar figure in the nearly eight-year history of the operation.

Regular patrons predict Brodien will need to pull more than a rabbit out of his sleeve to achieve the genuine congeniality displayed by Tselos in his nightly visits to each table.

Denmark to aid Vietnam orphans, says Lindstrom

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Prospect Heights minister Paul Lindstrom Monday said Denmark has agreed to cooperate in finding adoptive parents, some of whom will be Americans, for 200 Vietnamese orphans there.

Lindstrom, national chairman of the Remember the Pueblo Committee, said the "official decision was a complete reversal of an earlier decision made by the Danish government regarding the children."

Lindstrom said he learned of the decision Monday through a confidential source in the Danish foreign ministry. The committee sent a representative to Copenhagen Monday to discuss with Danish officials the future of the orphans.

The committee has been working for three weeks to retrieve the children from the Danish government's care and bring them to the United States.

LINDSTROM HELD a press conference last week to outline the plight of the children, saying they were being "mistreated under Danish care."

Lindstrom said then that the Danish government refused to place the children, who range in age from 4 to 19, for adoption. The government planned to maintain custody of the children, educate them and possibly return them to their homeland, he said.

"We received word today out of Copenhagen that the Danish government does not plan to return the children to Vietnam, and that they will be eligible for adoption by American, Danish or other families throughout the free world," he said.

"We view this as another victory, and we believe the decision was brought about because we drew attention to the situation last week and placed pressure on the U.S. State Dept. with our own contacts there. We embarrassed the Danes into this decision," Lindstrom said.

The Remember the Pueblo Committee also contends it was successful in gaining the release of crewmen of the USS Pueblo, which was captured by the North Koreans in 1968.

"IF ANY OF THE children want to come to the United States, the committee has the financial means to bring them here and find families for them. We are ready to do this, if this is what the children want," he said.

The orphans have been in the custody of the Danish government since early last year, when they were evacuated from their native Saigon. The children were originally in the care of Danish journalist Henning Becker.

The children have demonstrated against their custodians in governmental welfare centers on the island of Livo off the Danish coast where they have been held, Lindstrom said. Several children also have been injured in recent brawls with Danish police, Lindstrom said.

"Now, the children do not need asylum and can come into this country if they want to. Chances are that some of them will come here to live before too long," he said.

Ambulance tax vote set for April 24

Taxpayers in the Palatine Rural Fire Protection District will be asked to approve a separate tax levy for emergency ambulance service April 24, but the proposed levy would not significantly raise taxes, according to a rural fire district official.

The referendum requests voter approval for the district to levy a separate tax for emergency services, which are now financed with funds for fire protection services, said Mark Beaubien, rural fire protection district attorney.

He said there was "little reason to assume" the tax rate would increase from its present 26 cents per $100 assessed valuation, which pays for both fire protection and emergency services. Beaubien said there may be "slight" increases, but nothing for tax payers to "send up red flags over."

"THE REFERENDUM IS simply a matter of getting approval to operate on stronger ground," Beaubien said. He referred to an Illinois law passed in 1965 which allows rural districts to levy taxes for emergency services.

"If the referendum is passed, taxpayers will know what portion of their taxes goes for fire protection and how much goes for emergency services," Beaubien said.

Beaubien said several other rural fire protection districts in Cook County have voted to levy separate taxes for emergency services including Robert Park near Hickory Hills and Pingree Grove south of Elgin.

The referendum was prompted by the annual meeting of the Illinois Fire Protection District Assn. in Springfield earlier this month. Fred Roesser, president of the rural fire district, and Trustee Harold Bergman attended the meeting.

"It was the association's collective judgment that it's better to have specific authority for the services you offer," Beaubien said.

Aldermen plan another review of budget today

Rolling Meadows aldermen will meet at 8 p.m. today for another budget review.

Ald. Frederick Jacobson, 5th, called the session for a finance committee review of the proposed $4.7 million city budget.

The meeting will be held in city hall, 3600 Kirchoff Rd.

The committee is expected to review the general fund portion of the budget. Earlier reviews concerned the police, fire, public works, water, sewer, building and sanitation portions of the 1976-77 budget.

The city is expected to hire seven new firemen. No new personnel were recommended for any other department.

A 5 per cent salary increase for all city employees is under consideration.

The proposed $4.7 million budget is slightly higher than last year's $4.3 million budget.

Although the committee meeting is open to the public, a public hearing to review the budget before it is voted on by the council is set for 8 p.m. April 13 at city hall.

Landing gear fails

Plane malfunctions; fliers OK

by DIANE MERMIGAS

A single-engine plane that took off from Pal-Waukee Airport Monday morning was forced to make an emergency landing at the Glenview Naval Air Station after its landing gear malfunctioned.

Pilot Karl L. Birkenstock, Barrington, and Marjorie Sundmacher, an FAA-certified flight instructor from Deerfield, were not injured in the emergency landing.

The plane, a Cessna 177, received only minor damage as it skidded about 60 feet to a halt on a foam-covered runway at the air base, Lt. Cmdr. Bill Ryan said.

CONTROL TOWER officials at Pal-Waukee Airport, Prospect Heights, directed the plane to Glenview when the pilot reported that the front nose landing gear of the plane could not be lowered for landing.

Pal-Waukee is not equipped with the runway foaming equipment, which minimizes a plane's chances of catching fire upon impact. Glenview does have the foaming procedure.

The plane, which is based at Pal-Waukee, took off at about 11 a.m. for an annual flight check. The pilot was flying the plane over Waukegan when he discovered the faulty landing gear, Ryan said.

"Mechanics on the ground at Palwaukee referred the plane to us because we have the ability to foam a runway, thereby minimizing the chances of the plane catching on fire upon landing without the proper landing gear," Ryan said.

The nose of the plane hit the runway upon landing, although the rest of the plane was held up by two other landing gear in the rear, he said.

Waukee Airport, skidded to a stop on five inches of foam sprayed over the runway. The pilot, Karl L. Birkenstock, Barrington, and passenger Marjorie Sundmacher, Deerfield, were not injured.

Tom Thrun and Julia Roesler received honorable mention awards for their art work. The students were guests of honor at Monday's Rotary luncheon meeting at Holiday Inn, 3405 Algonquin Rd., Rolling Meadows.

Candidate drops out of library race

Norman C. Knapp, one of five candidates running for a six-year term on the Palatine Library Board, has dropped out of the race.

Knapp, 37, also is seeking a term on the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 school board. He will remain in the school board race.

Knapp said he made his decision to drop out of the library board race when he discovered that both boards meet on the same night, the second Wednesday of the month.

KNAPP NAME STILL will appear on the April 13 library ballot because he failed to notify the district to remove his name within the time span allowed by law following the official filing deadline. The school board election is April 10.

Knapp said if he is elected to both boards he will resign the library post.

His departure from the library board race narrows the field of candidates for the two 6-year terms on the board to four. The four candidates include Jean Tindall, who has served on the board as an appointed member since December, James C. Orcutt, Marvin Vollenweider and Arthur Gulapi.

Two candidates are vying for the available two-year term to be filled. The candidates are Robert Dix, a 33-year-old certified public accountant, and Paul Karlsen, an 18-year-old pre-law student at the University of Illinois Chicago Circle campus.

Tag day April 9 to benefit children

The Children's Benefit League of Chicago and suburbs will have its 68th annual tag day April 9.

The league provides money for about 50 children's agencies in the Chicago area, including community centers, settlement houses, nurseries and health care facilities.

Ambulance tax levy goes to fire unit voters April 24

Taxpayers in the Palatine Rural Fire Protection District will be asked to approve a separate tax levy for emergency ambulance service April 24, but the proposed levy would not significantly raise taxes, according to a rural fire district official.

The referendum requests voter approval for the district to levy a separate tax for emergency services, which are now financed with funds for fire protection services, said Mark Beaubien, rural fire protection district attorney.

He said there was "little reason to assume" the tax rate would increase from its present 26 cents per $100 assessed valuation, which pays for both fire protection and emergency services. Beaubien said there may be "slight" increases, but nothing for tax payers to "send up red flags over."

"THE REFERENDUM IS simply a matter for getting approval to operate on stronger ground," Beaubien said. He referred to an Illinois law passed in 1965 which allows rural districts to levy taxes for emergency services.

"If the referendum is passed, taxpayers will know what portion of their taxes goes for fire protection and how much goes for emergency services," Beaubien said.

Beaubien said several other rural fire protection districts in Cook County have voted to levy separate taxes for emergency services including Robert Park near Hickory Hills and Pingree Grove south of Elgin.

The referendum was prompted by the annual meeting of the Illinois Fire Protection District Assn. in Springfield earlier this month. Fred Roemer, president of the rural fire district, and Trustee Harold Bergman attended the meeting.

"It was the association's collective judgment that it's better to have specific authority for the services you offer," Beaubien said.

THE RURAL FIRE district is negotiating a contract with the Village of Palatine for its yearly assessment of the Palatine Fire Dept. budget. Last year the rural district paid 44.49 per cent of the department's budget.

Beaubien said this year's contract will cost less because the district is "constantly losing territory" as land is annexed to the village.

The new contract must be signed before April 30, when the old contract expires.

Dist. 15 to continue debate on budget cutbacks tonight

The Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 Board of Education will continue its budget hearings today at 7:30 p.m. at Palatine Hills Junior High School, 1100 N. Smith Rd., Palatine.

The board will discuss cutbacks in pupil personnel services, which includes special education programs, and the proposed closing of Cardinal Drive School, 2300 Cardinal Dr., Rolling Meadows.

The board is considering budget cuts necessary to eliminate an anticipated $2.2 million deficit in the 1976-77 budget.

The cuts proposed include eliminating 39 teachers, closing Cardinal Drive School and cutting special services and instructional programs.

The public will have an opportunity to respond to the board's budget discussion at tonight's meeting.

Fire budget gets preliminary OK from trustees

The Palatine Village Board meeting as a committee-of-the-whole Monday night tentatively approved a $755,809 budget for the Palatine Fire Dept. that includes provisions for the hiring of 12 new men.

However, the new firemen will be hired only if an April 24 referendum scheduled by the Palatine Rural Fire Protection District is approved.

The referendum will seek voter approval to levy a 25 cent per $100 assessed valuation ambulance tax levy in the district. The district currently levies 26 cents per $100 assessed valuation to cover both ambulance and fire fighting service.

THE MAXIMUM LEVY the district can impose for fire fighting service is 30 cents per $100 assessed valuation. The 30 cent maximum would remain the ceiling even if the ambulance levy is separated. The district can thus increase its revenues although officials have said only about 9 cents would be levied for fire fighting service.

The rural fire district, which includes Palatine Township, pays the village to provide ambulance service to its residents. Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones said in order to meet its share of the proposed fire department budget, the rural fire district, with an assessed valuation of $92 million, would have to assess 35 cents per $100 assessed valuation next year.

The only way to accomplish this is through approval of the referendum to separate the levies, he said. If the referendum is defeated, officials said the fire department budget would have to be cut, most likely in the area of new hiring.

Corresponding cuts in uniform allowances and training for new personnel also would be made, village officials said.

As a result of the referendum impact, the board agreed to review the fire department budget after the fire district vote to see if changes must be made in it. The board must approve the entire $7.39 million village budget before May 1.

THE BOARD MADE few changes in the proposed fire department budget, cutting $37,800 from the package presented by the administration.

Cuts included a $20,000 reduction in the proposed $50,000 salary allotment for full-time firemen who must work extra duty; elimination of a proposed $1,000 to create a first aid station at the Colfax Street Fire Station; elimination of $1,800 for the purchase of a car radio; and a $15,000 reduction in the $30,000 allotment for remodeling the Slade Street Fire Station.

The board said the reduced extra work duty salary allotment for full-time men would encourage the use of volunteers and a first priority for filling vacancies which could occur due to illness or other circumstances. A salary budget of $50,000 for volunteer callbacks remained unchanged.

The reduced amount for remodeling the Slade Street Fire Station was in line with the board's decision to use the station primarily as a fire station and not as a banquet hall facility. The upstairs hall of the station will not be as extensively remodelled as originally planned.

Telecare call may save a life

The phone kept ringing, but no one answered at the elderly woman's home in Rolling Meadows. The caller dialed several more times during the next hour, and still no one answered. The woman had high blood pressure and heart trouble. Could she be ill and unable to answer the phone?

Several miles away at Northwest Community Hospital's Telecare Office Peggy Williams' of Palatine dialed another number, a neighbor who could be phoned in case of emergency. The neighbor knocked on the woman's door, and still no one answered.

Worried, Mrs. Williams called a third number, the woman's son. Yes, his mother was with them. They had gone to church together, and Mrs. Williams shouldn't worry if his mother doesn't call or answer the phone on Sunday.

'Complete reversal of policy'

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Prospect Heights minister Paul Lindstrom Monday said Denmark has agreed to cooperate in finding adoptive parents, some of whom will be Americans, for 200 Vietnamese orphans there.

Lindstrom, national chairman of the Remember the Pueblo Committee, said the "official decision was a complete reversal of an earlier decision made by the Danish government regarding the children."

Lindstrom said he learned of the decision Monday through a confidential source in the Danish foreign ministry. The committee sent a representative to Copenhagen Monday to discuss with Danish officials the future of the orphans.

The committee has been working for three weeks to retrieve the children from the Danish government's care and bring them to the United States.

LINDSTROM HELD a press conference last week to outline the plight of the children, saying they were being "mistreated under Danish care."

Lindstrom said then that the Danish government refused to place the children, who range in age from 4 to 19, for adoption. The government planned to maintain custody of the children, educate them and possibly return them to their homeland, he said.

"We received word today out of Copenhagen that the Danish government does not plan to return the children to Vietnam, and that they will be eligible for adoption by American, Danish or other families throughout the free world," he said.

"We view this as another victory, and we believe the decision was brought about because we drew attention to the situation last week and placed pressure on the U.S. State Dept. with our own contacts there. We embarrassed the Danes into this decision," Lindstrom said.

The Remember the Pueblo Committee also contends it was successful in gaining the release of crewmen of the USS Pueblo, which was captured by the North Koreans in 1968.

"IF ANY OF THE children want to come to the United States, the committee has the financial means to bring them here and find families for them. We are ready to do this, if this is what the children want," he said.

The orphans have been in the custody of the Danish government since early last year, when they were evacuated from their native Saigon. The children were originally in the care of Danish journalist Henning Becker.

The children have demonstrated against their custodians in governmental welfare centers on the island of Livo off the Danish coast where they have been held, Lindstrom said. Several children also have been injured in recent brawls with Danish police, Lindstrom said.

"Now, the children do not need asylum and can come into this country if they want to. Chances are that some of them will come here to live before too long," he said.

Honduras hospitals need supplies

by JOE SWICKARD

It has been 18 months since Hurricane Fifi ripped across Honduras, killing thousands and leaving thousands injured or homeless. But the passing of time has not healed the wounds.

"It's really bad," said Maria McGowan. "There are no jobs. How can I tell you? It's really bad."

Mrs. McGowan, 1014 E. Crab Tree Dr., Arlington Heights, found more suffering when she returned to her native land in February.

"There were two hospitals in the capital city (Tegucigalpa) where there was not one wheelchair. The people — young and old — have to stay in bed; they cannot get out into the sun," Mrs. McGowan said.

THE HOSPITALS, Perpetuo Socorro and S.O.S. Village, are government-run hospitals for long-term patients. In a country the size of Pennsylvania that sustained an estimated $500 million in damages from the hurricane, "They just don't have the money for the wheelchairs," Mrs. McGowan said.

She now is, with the authorization of Honduran consulate in Chicago, seeking donations of wheelchairs for the two hospitals.

"They can be new or old. Even if they are damaged or missing wheels we can take them and fix them," Mrs. McGowan said.

Other related items, such as crutches, canes and braces, are needed, she said.

"As soon as we get enough, I will be going down personally to deliver them. After I saw how things were in February, I decided I would do whatever I could to help them from here," she said.

MRS. MCGOWAN SAW the plight of the ill during one of her continuing private relief trips to the Central American republic.

When Hurricane Fifi struck, Mrs. McGowan responded by collecting tons of food and clothing for the victims. The donations, which began around the neighborhood, eventually came from the entire Chicago area.

Her efforts did not stop there. She has continued to supply direct relief to the suffering in Central America. When earthquakes and tropical storms hit other countries of the area, goods she collected went to those victims.

The need does not stop at national borders, she said, so neither should the aid.

But the most poignant need now, she said, are the invalids unable to move from their beds because of the lack of the wheel chairs.

"Even one wheelchair would help. They can take turns using it," she said.

Mrs. McGowan said the oldest resident of the facilities, however, a woman of 103, would be the recipient.

Persons wanting to donate wheelchairs or other medical items should contact Mrs. McGowan at 394-9709.

Decision due on garbage fee tonight

The Mount Prospect Village Board tonight is expected to decide whether to charge residents directly for garbage collection, clearing the way for approval of the proposed $9.1 million 1976-77 budget.

"As I have seen, it," Mayor Robert D. Teichert said Monday, "the board unanimously favors a direct garbage charge. It's just a matter of how much (to charge)."

Village officials have proposed a direct charge to residents for scavenger service to help offset an estimated $400,000 deficit in the budget. The current garbage collection rate, now included in the real estate tax, is $4.29 per living unit per month for unlimited curb service.

Teichert, Trustee Edward B. Rhea Jr. and Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley all believe the board will be in a position tonight to vote on the budget's passage.

IN ADDITION to the direct garbage collection charge, cuts of $49,000 in tree maintenance, $10,000 in sidewalk repairs and an estimated $128,572 in personnel have been suggested in an effort to balance the budget.

Rhea, last week, publicly advocated the elimination of jobs in six village departments, including one engineer-draftsman inspector, two building inspectors, three maintenance personnel, all summer crossing guards in the police department, a public relations clerk and one fire inspector.

Eppley and Teichert have each said they are opposed to any personnel cuts.

"I would forego any pay raises," Teichert said, "if it requires cuts in village personnel. I, myself, would not vote to cut employees in favor of trimming trees or repairing sidewalks."

TEICHERT SAID he would like to see a rundown of village personnel, including job responsibilities, before he considers voting for personnel cuts.

Eppley was asked by the board last

Judge OKs multi-unit Magnus plan

A Cook County Circuit Court judge ruled Monday that the Magnus Farm on Central Road between Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect should be allowed to be developed at 17 units per acre, despite objections from the two villages.

Both villages previously have requested zoning the 42-acre nursing home site on Central Road for single-family development, subject to a special use for retirement and convalescent homes.

Arlington Heights Village Atty. Jack Siegel said he will recommend to the village board Monday that the decision be appealed. Some village trustees said Monday they would favor appealing the ruling.

Village Pres. James T. Ryan was unavailable for comment.

MOUNT PROSPECT Village Pres. Robert D. Teichert said he does not foresee his village joining an appeal effort.

"This was no miscarriage of justice. It was a neutral third-party decision. You can't forever spend your time and effort fighting windmills," Teichert said.

He said he understood the ruling "based on previous zoning decisions" on the Magnus property.

Siegel said he was surprised by Judge Raymond Berg's ruling, because the property is zoned for only 8 units per acre in the new Cook County zoning ordinance.

Arlington Heights Village Trustee Madeline Schroeder said she was "taken aback" by the ruling.

"IT'S RATHER disconcerting that the court can make such a ruling without having any real understanding of the new county zoning ordinance and what's going on in adjacent villages," she said.

Judge Berg originally approved the Magnus proposal Jan. 16 when he issued a court order allowing the issuance of 728 building permits to Alexander Magnus. Berg vacated that ruling three days later at the request of Siegel.

At the time of Judge Berg's first decision there was uncertainty about how the Magnus property would be zoned in the final zoning ordinance, which was undergoing hearings at the time.

Forest View band instructor retiring

Forest View High School band instructor Fred O. Elliott will retire at the end of the school year, ending 14 years as band instructor.

Elliott has taught 30 years in Michigan and Illinois before coming to Forest View when the school opened in 1962. He wrote the school alma mater and fight song and organized the instrumental music program. He also directed the Palatine village band for more than five years. The Forest View Jazz band has won a number of musical contests under his direction.

Elliott and his wife, Sylvia, plan to make their home south of Huntsville, Ark., and spend summers in northern Michigan.

Prospect Hts. to get PHIA study

Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. officials Monday night voted to present all recommendations made by its nine research committees to the city council after it is elected May 22.

The officials qualified their decision, however, by requiring all committee reports to follow a stringent format and be fully documented.

Association officials, during a special meeting at St. Alphonsus School, Prospect Heights, said they would review all reports and endorse those that reflected PHIA recommendations.

"However, all the committee reports will be submitted to the city council for its consideration," said Richard E. Wolf, PHIA president and mayoral candidate.

WOLF SAID the PHIA was "clarifying" its policy on the recommendations because of controversy that arose last week about how the reports would be presented to the council.

The PHIA has formed nine committees to research areas like police protection and road maintenance contracts, zoning and necessary ordinances.

Several candidates in the May city election who are not affiliated with the PHIA comprise one of the committees that is studying alternatives to PHIA proposals.

Those candidates last week asked for assurances that their committee report would not be altered or overshadowed by PHIA recommendations.

"If the report is submitted in the format we have approved, we assure you it will go to the council," Wolf told an audience of about 15 residents, which included several city council candidates.

THE PHIA format calls for documents, a statement of purpose and recommendations in a "businesslike form" from each committee.

Jack E. Gilligan, coordinator of the PHIA committee and also a mayoral candidate, argued against the need for the report guidelines.

"This is not just a matter of solving a public relations problem. You're directing these committees to do what I thought they already had the authority to do when they were established," he said.

Gilligan said the committee recommendations needed to be "integrated, directing the council to what it must consider first out of necessity."

PHIA officials said the committee reports will be presented to the city fathers at the city council's second meeting, early in June.

by JUDIE BLACK

The phone kept ringing, but no one answered at the elderly woman's home in Rolling Meadows. The caller dialed several more times during the next hour, and still no one answered. The woman had high blood pressure and heart trouble. Could she be ill and unable to answer the phone?

Several miles away at Northwest Community Hospital's Telecare Office Peggy Williams of Palatine dialed another number, a neighbor who could be phoned in case of emergency. The neighbor knocked on the woman's door, and still no one answered.

Worried, Mrs. Williams called a third number, the woman's son. Yes, his mother was with them. They had gone to church together, and Mrs. Williams shouldn't worry if his mother doesn't call or answer the phone on Sunday.

But every other day, including weekends and holidays, Mrs. Williams and the other volunteers at Telecare expect to hear from the woman between 9 and 11 a.m. It might be a brief conversation of pleasantries or a 30-minute chat, but the call tells Telecare their clients are alive and well.

"THE PEOPLE WHO call us want to be independent, but they still want to be in touch with someone too," Mrs. Williams, Telecare chairman, said. The service began six months ago, and now two men and 10 women call 255-2510 everyday to check in.

Danes to aid orphans: Lindstrom

by DIANE MERMIGAS
Prospect Heights minister Paul Lindstrom Monday said Denmark has agreed to cooperate in finding adoptive parents, some of whom will be Americans, for 200 Vietnamese orphans there.

Lindstrom, national chairman of the Remember the Pueblo Committee, said the "official decision was a complete reversal of an earlier decision made by the Danish government regarding the children."

Lindstrom said he learned of the decision Monday through a confidential source in the Danish foreign ministry. The committee sent a representative to Copenhagen Monday to discuss with Danish officials the future of the orphans.

The committee has been working for three weeks to retrieve the children from the Danish government's care and bring them to the United States.

LINDSTROM HELD a press conference last week to outline the plight of the children, saying they were being "mistreated under Danish care."

Lindstrom said then that the Danish government refused to place the children, who range in age from 4 to 19, for adoption. The government planned to maintain custody of the children, educate them and possibly return them to their homeland, he said.

"We received word today out of Copenhagen that the Danish government does not plan to return the children to Vietnam, and that they will be eligible for adoption by American, Danish or other families throughout the free world," he said.

"We view this as another victory, and we believe the decision was brought about because we drew attention to the situation last week and placed pressure on the U.S. State Dept. with our own contacts there. We embarrassed the Danes into this decision," Lindstrom said.

The Remember the Pueblo Committee also contends it was successful in gaining the release of crewmen of the USS Pueblo, which was captured by the North Koreans in 1968.

"IF ANY OF THE children want to come to the United States, the committee has the financial means to bring them here and find families for them. We are ready to do this, if this is what the children want," he said.

The orphans have been in the custody of the Danish government since early last year, when they were evacuated from their native Saigon. The children were originally in the care of Danish journalist Hemming Becker.

The children have demonstrated against their custodians in governmental welfare centers on the island of Livo off the Danish coast where they have been held, Lindstrom said. Several children also have been injured in recent brawls with Danish police, Lindstrom said.

"Now, the children do not need asylum and can come into this country if they want to. Chances are that some of them will come here to live before too long," he said.

Airplane malfunctions; aviators OK

by DIANE MERMIGAS
A single-engine plane that took off from Pal-Waukee Airport Monday morning was forced to make an emergency landing at the Glenview Naval Air Station after its landing gear malfunctioned.

Pilot Karl L. Birkenstock, Barrington, and Marjorie Sundmacher, an FAA-certified flight instructor from Deerfield, were not injured in the emergency landing.

The plane, a Cessna 177, received only minor damage as it skidded about 60 feet to a halt on a foam-covered runway at the air base, Lt. Cmdr. Bill Ryan said.

CONTROL TOWER officials at Pal-Waukee Airport, Prospect Heights, directed the plane to Glenview when the pilot reported that the front nose landing gear of the plane could not be lowered for landing.

Pal-Waukee is not equipped with the runway foaming equipment, which minimizes a plane's chances of catching fire upon impact. Glenview does have the foaming procedure.

The plane, which is based at Pal-Waukee, took off at about 11 a.m. for an annual flight check. The pilot was flying the plane over Waukegan when he discovered the faulty landing gear,

Ryan said. "Mechanics on the ground at Pal-Waukee referred the plane to us because we have the ability to foam a runway, thereby minimizing the chances of the plane catching on fire upon landing without the proper landing gear," Ryan said.

The nose of the plane hit the runway upon landing, although the rest of the plane was held up by two other landing gear in the rear, he said.

"WE SPRAYED ABOUT 500 feet of the runway with about five inches of foam, and it worked. We had no problems and no fire," he said.

Ryan said the plane reportedly was in the air for 2½ hours before it finally landed. The plane was towed back to Pal-Waukee Airport late Monday for minor repairs.

A malfunctioning landing gear is not a common occurrence, and the last similar incident took place at Glenview more than a year ago, Ryan said.

week to prepare a written statement outlining the duties required of the jobs in question and their relevance to the community. He is scheduled to present his recommendations at tonight's meeting.

The board agreed last week to hold the special budget session immediately following tonight's originally scheduled meeting with the downtown development commission. The meeting begins at 7:30 p.m. in the board meeting room of the public safety building, 112 E. Northwest Hwy.

Teichert said he expects a status report from the commission on the master plan for redeveloping the downtown area. "I suspect they will just be bringing us up-to-date on the situation. They will probably give us a complete working plan by the end of the year," he said.

How to make sure your phone is there the day you move in.

Moving day is one day you really need your telephone. And Illinois Bell wants to make sure it's in your new home on the day you move in.

So as soon as you know the date you'll be moving, call your Illinois Bell Service Representative. We'll try to have your phone installed by the time you're ready to move.

The Service Representative can also help you decide what kind of phones you'll need, which calling plan is best for you, and whether you're eligible for our Take and Save plan. If you are, you can save $5 by taking your old phones with you and giving them to the installer at your new address.

There's one more thing Illinois Bell can do to make your move a little easier. We can send you a free booklet, "A New Look at an Old Friend." It contains useful information about telephone styles, colors and prices. And even includes a piece of grid paper on which you can draw out a floor plan of your new home, to help you decide on furniture and phone placement.
